New York Police Mobilize To Meet School Marchers

Road-Block Techniques Ordered; More Pay For Teachers Demanded

NEW YORK (UP)—High school students staged a new march on City Hall today, undeterred by Thursday's wild rioting between an estimated 10,000 teenagers who overturned cars and harassed police trying to maintain order.

By 9:30 a.m. approximately 1,000 boys were en route to the City Hall, where 125 mounted and foot police were posted to turn them back.

All London Dock Men At Work Monday

LONDON (UP)—The Labor government appeared today to have broken the 10-day wildcat strike on the London docks with its threats to fire the 14,400 striking workers.

Two thousand strikers voted to go back to work tomorrow and labor officials were confident almost all strikers would be back on the job Monday morning—the "work-or-be-fired" deadline.

But the situation on the London docks, loaded with food and dollar exports goods, still is serious.

Cargo operations on 80 ships were tied up and were undermanned on four others. More than 5,000 soldiers, sailors and Royal Air Force ground crewmen worked 39 vessels and non-striking dockers manned 19.

Woman Uses Hatchet To Rout Bandits

VANCOUVER (CP)—Never underestimate the power of a woman—especially a hatchet-wielding member of the opposite sex.

Mrs. Thomas Bowman, 65, Thursday night routed three armed bandits with the help of her husband, when they attempted to rob her confectionery.

Three warning shots were fired by the bandits, but Mrs. Bowman persevered, forcing them to flee without obtaining any loot.

Police said the bandits, all armed, entered the confectionery and told the couple: "This is a holdup."

"Right away I grabbed the hatchet," said Mrs. Bowman. "It was under the counter." Unnerved, the would-be bandits fired three shots at random into the wall and fled. The aged couple followed them down the street. The men jumped into a car and disappeared.

Separation Of Twins, Hazard

EDMONTON (BUP)—An operation to separate the Tofted, Alta, Siamese twins is likely to be the most difficult operation of its kind ever undertaken anywhere, it was stated today.

Dr. Eardley S. Allan of Edmonton, who will carry out the delicate surgery, said a search of medical records had failed to turn up a case as difficult as the Tofted one.

He described it as highly risky.

The babies, Beverly and Brenda Townsend, will be brought 32 miles to Edmonton from Tofted tomorrow. They will be confined to the Royal Alexandra Hospital, where the operation is scheduled for the second week in May.

The pretty girls, now five months old, are joined face to face.

Police were ordered to keep the youthful demonstrators away from the area of the City Hall where a reception was planned for Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid at 12:30 p.m.

Kinkaid is to retire Monday as commander of the Eastern Sea Frontier and the Atlantic Reserve Fleet.

Police erected roadblocks at the bridge approaches to Manhattan to prevent demonstrators from Brooklyn and Queens entering Manhattan. They also guarded subway stations, hoping to turn the youths back.

Patrolmen were alerted to use the road-block technique at bridges linking Manhattan and Brooklyn to keep the teenagers from repeating riotous demonstrations to back demands of higher pay for their teachers.

INVESTIGATING

The Board of Education meanwhile began an investigation of the three-day student disorders. Mayor William O'Dwyer ordered it to find out who "fomented" the demonstrations that erupted into a five-hour free-for-all by an estimated 10,000 students at City Hall Thursday.

Bearing crudely lettered signs demanding: "A raise for our teachers," they charged police lines in an effort to "seize" City Hall.

The mayor was the target of the screaming invasion of the City Hall area. "We want Willie," the students chanted. "We want the Florida mayor," they shouted in a crack at O'Dwyer's recent jinkets to the south.

Would Isolate Radical Douks

OTTAWA (BUP)—The Ottawa Journal suggests editorially that a remote area of Canada's west be found for radical Doukhobors where they can live in isolation.

The newspaper says: "There must be some remote spot in the west where these bitter and savage men and women could be removed, with materials out of which, if they wished, they could build homes, on arable land they could till if they preferred not to starve."

"The settlement should be as far as possible from other human beings, and there the Sons of Freedom should be left to their own devices," the editorial said. "Over these many years, the

Antwerp Dock Strike Ending

ANTWERP, Belgium (AP)—Antwerp's 14,000 dockers started back to work today, ending a four-day Communist-led strike which paralyzed the port.

The strike started Monday when 250 Communist dockers broke up activities at the official hiring hall where dockers sign up for work daily.

The Communists claimed the wildcat strike was called to support demands for additional unemployment benefits. Dock officials said it really was aimed at tying up the port to prevent the unloading of American arms shipments due soon under the Atlantic Defence Pact.

King Phumiphon Of Siam Marries

Fast-75-Passenger Flying Boat Planned

COWES, Isle of Wight, Eng. (AP)—Saunders-Roe Ltd. announced Thursday night a new jet-flying boat design it expects to carry 74 passengers at 500 miles an hour.

Canadian authorities have sworn an astonishing tolerance for the crazy antics of the fanatical Doukhobors and official patience must be wearing very thin," the newspaper adds. "No matter what religious motive may be in the back of their confused minds, we have had enough of these queer people, have stood enough."

Both the government and the Doukhobors have made new moves in the strife-ridden Kootenays.

While 10 Sons of Freedom women were convicted Thursday in Nelson on charges of nude parading, other "Freedomites" fired three more gasoline-soaked dwellings in protest against man-made laws.

The 10, a small segment of the nearly 100 Doukhobors arrested in recent demonstrations, were sentenced to two and a half years in penitentiary.

Two U.S. Men Slain By Gang In West Java

By KENNETH LIKES

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—A Yale professor and a U.S. correspondent were slain Thursday in west Java—the apparent victims of a murderous gang whose motives could not be determined.

The two were Professor Raymond Kennedy, 43, of Yale University, a noted sociologist known to his students as "Jungle Jim" because of his urge to explore remote places, and Robert Doyle, 30, a native of Chicago who worked for Time and Life magazines out of Hongkong.

A spokesman for the U.S. embassy said the two were killed on a paved highway in a beautiful mountainous area where fanatical guerrilla bands were active during the Dutch-Indonesian warfare. There was an indication the bodies may have been mutilated.

The road had been considered safe for daytime travel.

Crest Likely To Hit Stricken Area Sunday

WINNIPEG (BUP)—Zero hour was only 48 hours away, as all of southern Manitoba waited out what loomed as the most disastrous flood in history, provincial engineers said today.

George Wallace, provincial drainage engineer, predicted today the crest would hit the stricken southern area by Sunday.

Every town between here and the U.S. boundary faced the inescapable onslaught of the rising Red River heading northward and swollen to proportions it had never reached before.

All-time peak was reached at Pembina, N.D., two miles south of the border, Thursday, and waters were now receding in the northern United States.

The Red River was getting its second wind after a 48-hour lull and was now taking in the full force of a new run-off from last Monday's five to seven-inch snowfall. It inched close to the 1948 peak when it left a $1,000,000 damage bill behind. In some areas the peak had been passed.

250 PERSONS FLEE

At Morris, between here and the hard-hit town of Emerson, Man., the water rose an additional five inches overnight, making a one-foot rise in the past 24 hours. At least 250 persons had fled the town more than one third of which was under water.

Sandbagging of the new Morris hospital and high school coincided with a pincer movement by the Red and Morris Rivers which encircled the town.

They indicated that country-wide popular response to his bill coupled with general confusion in Labor ranks had given the Australian Prime Minister new confidence.

Tito Foresees No Immediate Danger Of War

BELGRADE (UP)—Premier Marshal Tito today dismissed the possibility of an early reconciliation with Russia, but predicted there was no likelihood of war in the foreseeable future.

Tito made his statement at a press conference for the entire foreign press corps at the Belvi Dvor (White Palace), the official residence. It was the first time he has received the entire foreign press corps in more than two years.

The conference was called one day after Tito, in a speech before the Yugoslav parliament, had proposed creation of a "good neighbor" policy with Yugoslavia's non-communist neighbors Greece, Italy and Austria.

The body of the man, still unidentified, was discovered in the fourth floor washroom by guests who said they had been awakened by a commotion.

The victim's head and body had been beaten badly, police said.

Three guests reported seeing two sailors fleeing down a flight of stairs near the lavatory where the attack apparently was made.

Hotel authorities said they had not determined whether the victim was a guest.

Night manager Joseph Fitzpatrick of Boston said the motive for the crime apparently was robbery since the victim's pockets were empty.

Aussie Labor May Divide On Issue Of Reds

SYDNEY (BUP)—Australia's Labor Party threatened to split wide open today over the Conservative government's decision to outlaw the Communist Party.

The Labor opposition to the bill, led by ex-Prime Minister Joseph Chifley, previously insisted they should fight the bill on grounds that there should be no interference in union rights to choose their own officers.

Several prominent Labor leaders indicated today, however, there was a bitter conflict of opinion in party ranks which may lead to a major crisis.

Political observers said it appeared certain that if Labor obstructed the bill in the Senate, which they now control, Prime Minister Menzies would seek new mandate.

They indicated that country-wide popular response to his bill coupled with general confusion in Labor ranks had given the Australian Prime Minister new confidence.

The Conservative press throughout the country had enthusiastically applauded the government's move against the Reds.

Boston Police Hunt Sailors After Murder

BOSTON, Mass. (UP)—A well-dressed man about 40 years old was battered to death with a footstool in the public lavatory of a Boston Hotel early today. Police searched vessels in two navy yards for two sailors wanted in connection with the attack.

The body of the man, still unidentified, was discovered in the fourth floor washroom by guests who said they had been awakened by a commotion.

The victim's head and body had been beaten badly, police said.

WORST FLOODS IN HISTORY TO HIT MANITOBA

Red River Expected To Hit Peak Sunday; Hundreds Flee Homes

Canadian View On Spain Same, Says Pearson

OTTAWA (BUP) — External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson said today there was no change in sight in Canadian diplomatic relations with Spain.

He said, however, this country proposed to send diplomatic missions to two foreign capitals where Canada did not already have representatives. He did not reveal the identity of the capitals.

Pearson appeared as a witness before the House of Commons foreign affairs committee to state government policy on relations with Spain and the situation in Germany, divided between east and west.

On Germany, Pearson said the impasse still existed in relations with Russia on attempts to arrange a peace settlement.

"There has been practically no progress made in respect to the German peace settlement," he said. "The U.S.S.R. has decided to consider a peace settlement only on her own terms—shackled political life, Soviet participation in the Ruhr, and power to dispose as she sees fit with German manpower."

$35,000,000 E.C.A. CASH FOR CANADIAN WHEAT

WASHINGTON (AP)—Britain today was granted $35,000,000 to pay for Canadian wheat under the Marshall Plan.

The Economic Co-operation Administration announced the spending approval. The agency said the grain-buying will begin immediately and continue until June 30. Delivery must be made by August 31.

The grain purchase was approved to enable Britain to meet its commitments under the British-Canadian Wheat Agreement, E.C.A. said.

E.C.A. had agreed to pay for $175,000,000 worth of wheat bought under that agreement this year. Today's spending approval used up the last of the funds earmarked for the purpose.

RIOTING STUDENTS PURSUED BY POLICE

New York High School Mobs Chased In City's Centre By Mounted Men

NEW YORK (AP)—A swarm of students, bolting classes for the fourth day, marched into the City Hall area today in a continuing protest over teachers' wages and curtailed extra-curricular activities.

Some 250 students, trooped into Foley Square in downtown Manhattan, the area where most of the municipal and state- and federal buildings are located, and the scene of mass tumult for the last four days.

Mounted police, reinforced by extra details of foot patrolmen, pursued the marching students, who ran shouting and screaming across lawns of the state and federal court buildings.

The charging police split the throng, which apparently was attempting to form a line to march several blocks toward the City Hall—objective of Thursday's disorders.

NO OVERTIME

The student rebellions broke out four days ago in a protest against curtailment of extra-curricular activities, which resulted when teachers declined to work after school hours because their wage demands had not been met.

The demonstrating students today booted, at police, and waved, clenched fists. They shouted "Hi, ho, Silver" at the mounted officers, and made flying leaps in attempts to frighten the horses.

Thursday's rioting was participated in by an estimated 10,000 teenagers who overturned cars and continued the demonstration for five hours.

Bearing crudely-lettered signs demanding: "A raise for our teachers," they charged police lines in an effort to "seize" city hall.

Police this morning erected roadblocks at the bridge approaches to Manhattan to prevent demonstrators from Brooklyn and Queens entering Manhattan. They also guarded subway stations, turning some of the youths back.

Today the board of education was investigating the four-day student disorders. Mayor William O'Dwyer had ordered it to find out who "fomented the demonstrations."

Czechs Ask U.S. Call Its Envoys Home

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (BUP)—The government demanded today that the United States reduce the number of its diplomats in Czechoslovakia by two-thirds.

The Czech foreign office made the demand in a note broadcast by the Prague radio.

The note said recent espionage trials proved that U.S. diplomats played an "important role in activities aimed at the security of the Czechoslovak People's Republic."

As a result, the note said, Czechoslovakia felt "bound to ask the United States embassy in Prague to reduce by two-thirds the number of its employees and of those of the U.S. consulate in Bratislava."

Said Princess Means To Have Large Family

LONDON (AP)—Princess Elizabeth may re-establish the royal tradition of large families, Buckingham Palace sources hinted today.

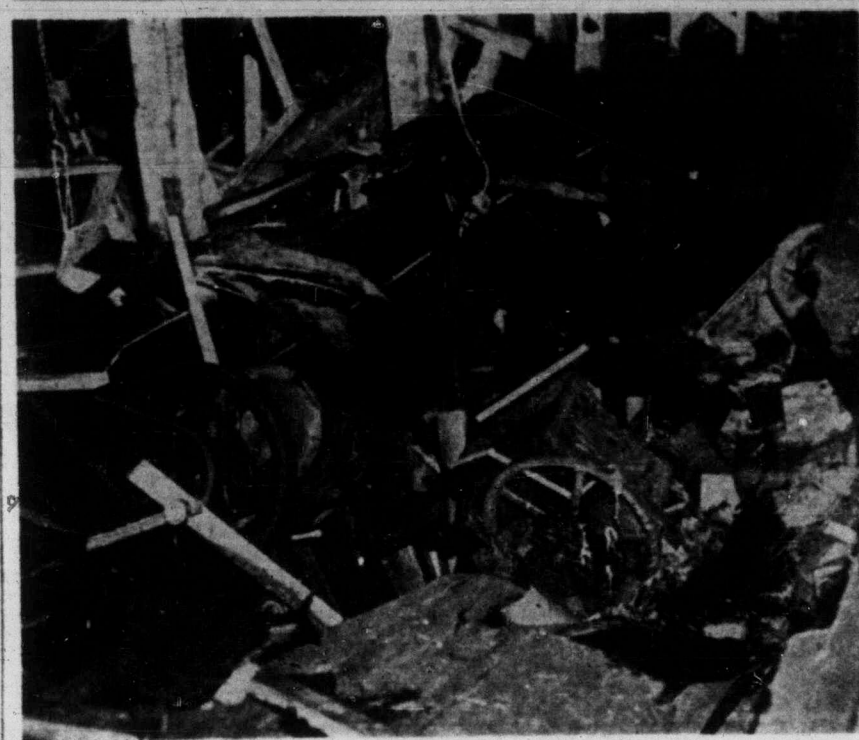

The heiress-presumptive to the throne and her young husband, Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, are expecting their second child in August. The people around the palace think the baby won't be the last by any means.

"There's no question but that both are very child-minded," one informant said. "This is particularly true of Princess Elizabeth since the birth of her first baby."

Queen Victoria set a big-family tradition for the British Royal House. She had nine children herself, and at the time of her death had 37 great-grandchildren on her Christmas list.

King Edward VII had five children—three princesses and two princes. King George V, Elizabeth's grandfather, had six, five of them boys. The big family tradition was broken by Elizabeth's father, King George VI, who gave Britain two girls—Elizabeth and her merry younger sister, Princess Margaret.

Hoover U.N. Proposal Divides U.S. Opinions

From AP and UP Dispatches

In New York today Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said that former President Herbert Hoover's proposal to reorganize the United Nations and exclude the Russians and their satellites from the United Nations appeared to her to be a direct step toward war.

In Washington, however, the Hoover proposal struck a popular note among United States congressmen.

Mrs. Roosevelt outspokenly criticized the proposal in an interview given at U.N. headquarters in Lake Success.

"Mr. Hoover's statement," she said, "seemed a little odd considering the fact that he is a Quaker, for this seemed an action somewhat marching toward war rather than keeping the world together."

"If you keep the world together, you at least have a chance to talk and do things. As long as you are in the U.N. you still have certain obligations you accept."

"I believe in doing the best we can with the U.N. as it is organized. We are not yet at the point where we are ready to give up sovereignty. But the U.N. is a method of keeping us working together and growing in mutual understanding and therefore it seems an instrument we should back and foster and use to the very utmost."

Called Inevitable

While chairman Tom Connally (Dem.-Tex.) of the Senate foreign relations committee declined comment in Washington, Senator Walter George (Dem.-Ga.) appeared to be reflecting widespread Democratic sentiments when he said he regarded such a move as "inevitable."

"Ultimately we will have to come to that," George told a reporter. "I have felt such a move is inevitable since Russia demonstrated that she will not keep her agreements."

"If the United Nations isn't reorganized it is difficult to see how it can continue with any strong promise of success."

Senator Bourke Hickenlooper (Rep.-Iowa), another member of the foreign relations group, said the present stalemate should cause Congress to give "profound and immediate" consideration to Hoover's suggestion.

LIE'S OPINION

Commenting in London on the Hoover proposal, Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, said that if Russia and eastern Europe were ousted from the U.N. there no longer would be a world organization.

"The U.N. no longer would be what it was meant to be," he added.

He said he was disappointed the U.N. was not working better, and admitted the situation now is more tense than in previous years.

Injunction Till May 9 Tests Stand

Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane today granted, until May 9 an interim injunction restraining striking truck drivers of Evans, Coleman and Johnson Bros. Ltd. from picketing the new provincial government office building opposite the Legislative Buildings on the east side of Government Street.

Application for the injunction was made by Dawson and Hall Ltd., contractors for the construction of the building. The injunction will be served today on officers of the Vancouver Island Drivers' Division of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

RIGHT CHALLENGED

The court action is regarded by the Victoria Building Industries Exchange as a test case as to whether the union has a right to picket construction projects throughout the city.

An exchange official announced construction workers were being notified to return to work on Monday. If the men are willing to return to their jobs, work is expected to resume on all other building projects in the city.

The injunction granted also prevents the strikers from interfering with any person supplying or delivering sand, gravel or other building materials for the contract on the building.

The contracting firm was represented in court by D. M. Gordon.

The judge granted the injunction on an affidavit signed by Leonard Woodrow Hall, 151 Howe Street, building superintendent of the company.

Mr. Hall claimed that he notified union officials that in view of the strike he intended to get materials for the building elsewhere than from Evans, Coleman and Johnson Bros. Ltd.

"To this they replied that the attitude of the union was that no matter where I obtained sand or gravel, they would declare it 'hot' material, and have other trades recognize their attitude," he said.

Mr. Hall said that one union official suggested that he should use his influence with Evans, Coleman and Johnson Bros. Ltd. to settle the strike.

QUIT APRIL 4

Carpenters employed on the government building stopped work when striking truck drivers picketed the premises on April 4, Mr. Hall said.

On the following day, Mr. Hall said carpenters and laborers refused to cross the picket line.

Mr. Hall said the workers on reinforced steel and the electricians, employed by subcontractors, went off work at the same time as the carpenters and laborers, and had not returned to work.

He also said sand not obtained from the firm involved in the strike had been declared "hot" by the pickets. He added that he believed this was the reason workers had refused to return to their jobs.

"None of the sand or gravel brought to the building was obtained from Evans, Coleman and Johnson Bros. Ltd. or from any other producer whose employees were on strike," said Mr. Hall.

"No trade dispute has at any material time existed between the plaintiff and its employees."

Four 'Teen-Agers Seize Bicyclist

The two youths and the girls with them forced young Large to ride with them to the Oak Bay bathhouse where he managed to escape.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

TWO BLACK CROWS

WHILE planting some pansies up among the rocks the other day—with disastrous results to my scroliac or whatever it is that makes it so hard to bend when you begin to get on in years—I was made conscious that someone didn't approve of my efforts.

Or at least that's how it sounded. For a big black crow was sitting on top of a leafless oak nearby, squawking loudly as he watched my gardening efforts with an evidently derisive eye. When he saw that I had noticed him, he became even more raucous and started wheeling around as if exceedingly angry.

AMOS AND ANDY

IGNORING his noisy objections to my working on my own bit of terra firma, I went on with the job and was regaled with what seemed to be a bit of crow comedy. After a short time my critic was joined by another crow which, unlike the first one that was black at soot from beak to tail, boasted a bright yellow beak.

I thereupon christened them Amos and Andy, for they immediately started on a nonsensical, nonstop flood of chatter, evidently exchanging views about what was happening in the bird world. At times their crying got so loud and angry that I came to the conclusion they were wrangling over some political problem pertinent to crowdom.

PECKS AND BATHS

IN BETWEEN arguments they pecked away among the rocks. I couldn't see what at, but hoped it wasn't at the tender little shoots of my dianthus or polyanthus. Finally, when they had fed to fullness, they suddenly spied a number of small birds splashing and drinking merrily in the bird bath down on the lawn below.

That was enough! Looking at each other as if to say "Well, what do you know about that! The nerve of them, barging in on our territory!" they flew down flapping their wings and squawking loudly. The frightened little feathered friends scattered quickly, and Amos and Andy took over, drinking thirstily with their feet in the bath.

PAIRING PERHAPS?

HAVING noisily satisfied their thirsts at what they evidently considered their own private bar, the two flew back to the rocks and continued their pecking, punctuated by raucous sounds as if warning all and sundry to keep off.

As I watched them, by this time from the vantage point of the kitchen window, I wondered if the difference between the black and yellow beaks meant that one was a male and the other a female. And whether their companionship and their joint resentment at any intrusion meant they were a courting couple. But whether they are or not, I have rechristened them Amos and Andy.

PHEASANT AROUND

WHILE on the subject of birds, I must report—in answer to many enquiries made by my readers—that there is yet no sign of a new quail family. In fact I have been so busy fulfilling public engagements that I have lost track of happenings in our local bird world.

I haven't even caught sight of the older generation of quail for several weeks, so can only hope they are busy on their own domestic affairs, preparing for the advent of certain little feathered strangers. But I know Mr. Cock Pheasant is around as I hear his cry every morning as he makes his matutinal excursion across the next lot and up over our demesne. From the cocky sound of it, I fancy he is thereby announcing to the world that he, too, is an expectant father.

OVER 100 TOOK PART

Abundant Spirit Shown By High School Bands

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

With more than a hundred students taking part, the bands and orchestras of the schools of Greater Victoria, Thursday night, presented an admirable program of marches, waltzes and other music, in the auditorium of Victoria High School. training on the part of musical directors and teachers. Light and classical numbers balanced each other in the program which featured combined bands, a brass quartette, the Victoria High School orchestra, combined orchestras and string classes.

The third annual concert of this nature, growing interest and enthusiasm among the boys and girls is marked. So is the value of a project that enriches the lives of the coming generation and prepares symphony and band performers as well as an appreciative audience, for the future.

Congratulations must be extended to the committee headed by J. F. K. English and consisting of J. Gough, Trustee Arnold Trevett, W. B. Dickleson and H. J. Bigsby, and to the conductors, Norma Douglas, R. E. Grant, J. P. Tamblin and G. E. Bower.

Victoria Pair Impressive In Recital

Two local musicians who displayed superior artistry and a mature and thoughtful approach were Mary Hammond, cellist, and Anna Calvert, pianist, who in recital Wednesday night at Victoria College. The sponsors of the event, which certainly deserved to be starred on Victoria's musical calendar, were the Greater Victoria Arts Centre and the evening division of Victoria College.

Mrs. Hammond, leading cellist with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, has been a noted soloist and ensemble player since she was a girl in her teens. She revealed a warm, vibrant tone, a dexterous left hand and an ample bow technique that resulted in some good phrasing.

She plays with intensity and verve, so that the virtuoso parts of her performance arise, not merely from a comprehensive technique, but are inherent in her qualities as a musician. In the Handel and Beethoven Sonatas, cellist and pianist were well matched, Miss Calvert having a similar insight into the music, combined with a satisfying feeling for the ensemble. As a soloist, Miss Calvert shows discrimination in choosing music to which her intellectual and meticulous style is well suited. Her tone is firm, her phrasing clean-cut and flexible and all musical detail is fully explored.

Today's vote brings to an end vigorous campaigns for and against the by-law which have been waged during the past few weeks.

Suggested 'Sons' Be Sent Far Out Into Wilderness

Cut Off These 'Bitter, Savage' People
Ottawa Journal Editorial Proposes

OTTAWA (BUP)—The Ottawa Journal suggests editorially that a remote area of Canada's west be found for radical Doukhobors where they can live in isolation.

The newspaper says: "There must be some remote spot in the west where these bitter and savage men and women could be removed, with materials out of which, if they wished, they could build homes, on arable land they could till if they preferred not to starve."

"The settlement should be as far as possible from other human beings, and there the Sons of Freedom should be left to their own devices," the editorial said. "Over these many years, the Canadian authorities have sworn an astonishing tolerance for the crazy antics of the fanatical Doukhobors and official patience must be wearing very thin," the newspaper adds. "No matter what religious motive may be in the back of their confused minds, we have had enough of these queer people, have stood enough."

Aussie Labor May Divide On Issue Of Reds

SYDNEY (BUP)—Australia's Labor Party threatened to split wide open today over the Conservative government's decision to outlaw the Communist Party. The Labor opposition to the bill, led by ex-Prime Minister Joseph Chifley, previously insisted they should fight the bill on grounds that there should be no interference in union rights to choose their own officers. Several prominent Labor leaders indicated today, however, there was a bitter conflict of opinion in party ranks which may lead to a major crisis.

Red Chief Of France's Atom Commission Fired

PARIS (AP)—The French government decided today to fire Frederic Joliot-Curie, Communist scientist, as chief of France's Atomic Energy Commission.

Centre and right-wing leaders and newspapers have been demanding such action ever since Joliot-Curie told the 12th national congress of the French Communist Party early this month that "Communist scientists will never contribute a particle of their science to a war against the Soviet Union." This was assailed by the non-leftist press as a sentiment which should disqualify Joliot-Curie from holding such a vital position. Socialist newspapers also attacked the scientist's statements at the time, although they did not specifically demand his ouster.

GRACIE MAKES A DATE With AN OLDS ROCKET "88"

Gracie Fields, the popular singer, who has opened her Canadian Tour with Victoria as her starting point, chose a 1950 Oldsmobile Rocket "88" as her personal car during her stay in the city. The lovely model shown above was supplied by Wilson Motors Ltd., Victoria Oldsmobile dealers. Miss Fields waxed enthusiastic over the beauty and performance of the sleek car. Perhaps our roads leave something to be desired after last winter, but Gracie did not even notice it with the Olds Futuramic and road hugging chassis ride, which irons out the roughest highway. Luxurious interior finish added to the appeal, while in performance there's the velvet smooth getaway of the GM Hydramatic drive and "Whirlaway" transmission, there's the sensational power of the Rocket Valve-in-head V-8 engine. Miss Fields expressed herself so delighted with the Olds Rocket "88" that arrangements have been made for the same model Olds to be placed at her disposal throughout her tour of Canada. ***

Jobs Needed For Graduates

REPORTS THAT SUITABLE JOB openings for graduates are scarce will not provide welcome news for the students in this province who shortly will complete their studies and enter the professional, commercial or industrial life of British Columbia. But next month's graduates will not be the first class to leave university in relatively "tight" times of employment, nor the first to overcome such obstacles to their progress. Men and women who left school in the 'thirties and eventually found a place in our economic life despite the depression could give good advice to those now facing a situation of somewhat similar, though far from equally severe, job shortage.

Current conditions present a challenge to the new graduates. But they present one also to the business life of this province. The knowledge and ability that have been furthered at considerable private and public expense during the past four years are now about to be thrown on the market. Are there to be no takers among the companies and firms which form the backbone of British Columbia's economy? Here is a situation where a valuable B.C. product should find local purchasers. One of the few forms of trade which result in a loss to the producer is the export of brains, and all too many of our professionally trained men and women have had to seek American employers in past years. True, there is a limit to how many workers the province can absorb in any one year, but can we say that a territory of such vast resources and opportunities as ours is anywhere near that limit at present?

The point has been raised by National Employment office officials that some graduates may have to take laboring work until a more suitable opening is presented. Here, again, no new ground is being broken. The so-called "hungry thirties" put many a Bachelor of Arts or Science into the mines of British Columbia, or on the farms or in the mills.

Few suffered unduly, and many profited by a close-up view of a different economic and social life from that to which they were aspiring. The present crisis of graduates should prove no exception. Special efforts, however, should be made to see that war veterans, who already have given up as much as four years of their lives in their country's service, should have to suffer no further delays in entering on their proper careers. We repeat, the challenge is to the employers of B.C. as much as to the graduates, and it is one that should be met frankly and in a fully co-operative spirit of enterprise.

The Navy Is Canadian

THE REMARKS OF VICE-ADMIRAL T. W. Grant, chief of naval staff, relative to the "Canadianization" of the R.C.N. will furnish further reassurance to those people who applauded the Mainbury report on that point. Quite properly, the vice-admiral points out that the Royal Navy has been well qualified to act in the role of teacher. No one will be inclined to question that fact.

On the other hand it was natural that any differences between the British association of officers and men and the relationship between their counterparts in this Dominion should be considered in the light of the points raised in the Mainbury report. The commissioners who signed that document noted "a very real and almost universal opinion among the men that the Canadian Navy was not sufficiently Canadian," and "a prevalent opinion that there is an artificial distance between officers and men not wholly connected with the necessity of maintaining the essential differences in rank."

Vice-Admiral Grant has explained that: "Except for a few minor points, every recommendation in the Mainbury report was already under consideration or actually being implemented when the report was released."

Whether the value of the findings was more psychological than actual is a question of relative merit only. So long as any unsatisfactory conditions to which it drew attention have been remedied, the people of this country will be well pleased. This Dominion's pride in its men in blue—all ranks—runs deep. Incidents such as those that prompted the enquiry last year are disturbing to the people. Civilians, of course, cannot have the close knowledge of their cause that is available to men in the position of the chief of naval staff. His reassuring remarks will be appreciated by the public in general.

Two Projects Moving Forward

LATEST REPORTS INDICATE THAT the two road projects in which Greater Victorians are interested—the new into town route of the Island Highway and the proposed speed highway to Patricia Bay airport—are making progress. The former undertaking is understandably not receiving full publicity due to the fact that a considerable amount of property must be expropriated. Such preliminary preparation obviously places the exact route on the secret list. But we are given to understand that the more active phase of construction will not be long delayed, and the announced inclusion of the southern part of the Island Highway in the Trans-Canada Highway category should aid in speeding the work. Scheduled for more immediate attention is the development of the East Saanich highway to provide a more direct route between city and airport. Public Works Minister E. C. Carson has revealed, on his return from Ottawa talks, that the new route will by-pass Royal Oak Junction to the east and will also be located eastward of the present road in the Experimental Farm area. Work on these changes will start at once, according to the Minister, with a total expenditure over the next two years estimated at $300,000. This province has seen considerable progress in its road program during the post-war years, and Vancouver Island has benefitted particularly. The current undertakings are additional evidence of a progressive program being actively carried out.

Everybody's Problem Today

A STRUGGLE, PERHAPS SYMBOLIC of the greater contest that is dividing men's minds throughout the world, is taking place in the little community of Chobham, England. Chobham Common, remembered by many members of the Second Canadian Corps who trained there during the war, permanently lost 150 of its acres to the Army for use as a tank testing ground. Now the Army wants to take over a further 500 acres of the Common, in order to enlarge the range. But the residents of the village are up in arms, as are many Sunday trippers from London who have long made the Common a favorite holiday spot. Tanks, they claim, have turned the parkland area now used into a dustbowl in summer and a quagmire in winter, and the Government is being petitioned to spare another 500 acres the same fate. In miniature, it is a contest to be found everywhere today—the longing of the average man and woman for an end to armaments and preparations for war and a return to the pleasant ways of peacetime in beautiful surroundings, versus the need for defence against aggression in a world of armed powers. The unfortunate truth would seem to be that under present circumstances one cannot enjoy the former without suffering the costs of the latter. We must have sword and shield handy when taking our ease.

Party Takes Over Polish Press Red Propaganda Replacing News

By JOHN MILES From London

THE final act in the communication of the Polish press took place in Warsaw a few days ago when some 500 journalists, attending the annual meeting of their union, ratified a previous decision making it virtually impossible for a non-Communist journalist or editor to practice his calling.

The meeting was called ostensibly to elect the union's new officers. Attendance was compulsory. Balloting was conducted in such a way that only Communists were elected.

SURVIVING MEMBERS
The 500 members attending were those who have survived the series of recent purges of the Polish press and who have yielded to the regime's demand that Polish newspapers become what is tantamount to replicas of those of the U.S.S.R.

For those men, therefore, it was less humiliating to accept the Politburo's dictum that it is no longer professional ability that counts but simply willingness to write what the party dictates. Press correspondents set up throughout Poland have been drawn not from the ranks of professional journalists but from members of the Communist Party, leaders of local Communist branches. These select news men are considered important and either write or wire it to the newspaper offices.

This automatically excludes almost everything of human interest so that all news in Poland today tends more and more to be monotonous accounts of party meetings and party and government activities.

It was recently announced in Warsaw that the 35 dailies in the country have appointed some 10,000 such correspondents. One daily alone, the Trybuna Robotnicza, employs 1,500.

Subservience to the party cause is not without its reward. As in the Soviet Union, Polish journalists earn high salaries compared with those before the war. All first-rank reporters and editors earn a minimum of £100 a month, many a good deal more.

With unlimited government subsidies, cheap paper and artificially-stimulated circulations, the newspapers themselves are financially much better off than before the war.

NOTHING ELSE
The Poles, always inveterate newspaper readers, finding nothing else to read, buy them and circulations have risen enormously. A Katowice daily has reached the unprecedented circulation (for Poland) of nearly 500,000. A woman's weekly recently announced it had reached 1,000,000—more than the aggregate circulation of all prewar periodicals in Poland.

By 1953

By JOSEPH ALSOP From Rome

IN THE last year and a half, this old city has been, as it were, gilded with a splendid appearance of prosperity. The Italian recovery, which is now as complete as any recovery can be, wholly fails to solve all the really basic social and economic problems. There are vast gaps, but the surface, always exquisitely beautiful in Rome, in any case now positively glitters.

Immediately below the surface, however, there is a hidden crisis of the utmost significance to North America as well as to western Europe. The whole effort to organize the defence of the western world against Soviet aggression is in fact now in danger of breaking down.

IN ORDER to understand what is happening, one must go back to the beginning of the planning of the defence of the west under the Atlantic Pact. The spade-work was done, for reasons which must be examined later, in the closed circle of the so-called Atlantic Pact standing group. This body, headed by General Omar Bradley, and comprising representatives of the staffs of the more important Atlantic Pact nations, labored for many months to produce two fundamental papers.

The first paper was a seclusive plan for the defence of the west. The second was a list of requirements—of weapons, of bases and of manpower—to make this strategic plan a real thing.

WITH almost no strength in Europe and with America disarming as a result of Secretary of Defence Johnson's "economics," the program was necessarily ambitious. Powerful European ground forces had to be built up and ground defences had to be designed. Western Europe had to be defended securely in the air, naval forces provided to protect the ocean, supply lines had to be provided. Strategic air bases had to be prepared to assure immediate retaliatory air attacks in the event of Soviet aggression.

Furthermore, the time allowed was very short. The year 1953 is the moment when Russian war preparations will reach their first climax. It was necessary to provide at least a skeleton defence by 1953, with 26 fully armed divisions in being in Europe by that date. In the final phase, in 1955, European ground forces were to be considerably more than 50 divisions, with all other arms in balance.

THIS was the program that was presented some weeks ago to the assembled Atlantic Pact defence ministers at The Hague. Significantly, it was considered adequate by all those at the meeting. France alone entered reservations about the future German participation in the western defence efforts. With this exception, the program was approved in toto and unanimously.

Especially at this point, however, it began to be clear that a heavy price would have to be paid for Secretary Johnson's decision to dissolve the State Department-Defence Department Partnership, which had been so close before he took office. Because the planning of this had been isolated in Washington, it had also been isolated in Europe. Until The Hague conference of defence ministers and chiefs of staff was so triumphantly concluded, none of the really important problems of western defence, political or social, economic or fiscal, had ever been explored on the highest governmental level.

THE list of requirements to carry out the program approved at The Hague demanded a very great effort by every European partner in the Atlantic Pact. With almost no exceptions, all these nations are already strained to the limits of their strength and resources by the task of postwar reconstruction. If Secretary Johnson and Secretary of State Acheson had been continuously working together, with their opposite numbers in Europe, all the leaders of all the European governments might by now have been educated in the dimensions of the problem.

INSTEAD, the heavy list of requirements agreed upon at The Hague came as a rude shock to almost every European leader outside the charmed circle of the chiefs of staff and defence ministers. Here in Italy, Prime Minister De Gasperi and Finance Minister Pella were plainly appalled by costs they could not meet. Since Italy, however, is after all a lesser partner, the Italian government waited to see what would be the reaction of the key western union powers and Benelux countries.

Some days ago, a full and representative group of cabinet ministers from Britain, France and the Benelux countries met at Brussels. After the shortest examination they concluded they could not foot the bill for The Hague program. Ambassador Lewis Douglas was hastily summoned from London, confronted with this unanimous decision, and requested to inform Washington that the defence of the west could not be organized without much larger American contributions.

THIS, of course, had been obvious from the first. As has been often stated by this writer, an increase in the American effort of from $3,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 annually is clearly necessary until a solid western defence has been built up. As matters stand, however, we face the grave danger of the whole problem being deferred. The Europeans cannot and therefore will not make the necessary extra effort at this time.

All this may seem unimportant and academic. But the grim central fact which cannot be escaped is that the year 1953, when Russian war preparations will be completed, will be a year of utmost danger. If the west now throws away the 12 months of the short time that is still allowed for organizing a solid defence, the consequences can be disastrous.

RESOLUTION

I have much pleasure in forwarding to you the following resolution passed at the recent meeting of the Synod of the Diocese of British Columbia: Resolved that a hearty vote of thanks from this Synod is hereby extended to the press of Victoria for its reports of the proceedings of the Synod.

H. M. BOLTON,
Clerical Secretary.

WITHDRAWAL RATE.

While agreeing in principle with much that two of our local educators have said, I think that attention should be called to two of their statements that seem to be somewhat exaggerated. One is that "almost every child now goes to high school" (Dr. J. M. Ewing), and the other than 99 per cent of the pupils are so fortunate (Mr. H. L. Smith). The facts of the matter are that of the 11,900 B.C. pupils who entered Grade 7 in 1946 more than 10 per cent dropped out before entering Grade 9, and more than 25 per cent dropped out without reaching senior high school (Grade 10) last year. If recent experience is a criterion only 43 per cent will take a complete high school course of any sort, and only one-quarter will obtain university entrance standing. The students are highly selected before they get to Dr. Ewing, but not highly specialized.

British Columbia's rate of withdrawal is lower than that of any other province.

but it is still high. Is it not due to the fact that we as taxpayers are not willing to provide the valuable but very expensive practical, technical or pre-vocational type of education that half of our children need, or the skilled instructors to teach it? The new curriculum makes plentiful provisions for individualized instruction in our present schools. But unless we are willing to reduce the size of classes and provide additional accommodation and equipment teachers will continue to aim at the "average" student.

C. B. CONWAY.

SATISFACTORY, MR. JOSEPHS?

Your correspondent, Walter Josephs, in a letter published in Tuesday's edition under the heading "Adulteration," has asked what the Food and Drugs Act has done about the use of nitrogen trichloride as an aging agent in flour.

May I draw to his attention a directive sent out to all flour millers of Canada which states:

"An office consolidation of revised Food and Drug Regulations has recently been distributed.

"Your attention is drawn to section B.13.008 which reads as follows:

"B.13.008. No person shall sell flour that contains nitrogen trichloride."

The above is self-explanatory. I hope it answers Mr. Josephs' question.

G. K. BEASTON,
Inspector of Food and Drugs, Dept. of National Health and Welfare.

Russo - Italian Relations Strained By Reparations, Trieste Problems

By CECIL SPRIGGE, from Rome

THE RUSSIAN note to the Italian Government complaining that the execution of Italy's reparations obligations towards Russia has been delayed by unreasonable attempts to set a high value upon Italian assets in the Balkans brings the retort in Rome that the delays are due to the Soviet Government, whose note is the first reply to the Italian proposal of four months ago that the differences regarding the valuation of the Balkan assets should be settled through diplomatic channels.

STICKY NEGOTIATIONS

Negotiations in the three countries concerned, Roumania, Yugoslavia and Hungary have in fact been extremely sticky. One of Italy's negotiators in Roumania who recently returned here said that there was an enormous gap between what Italy considers these assets—for example Italian insurance offices operating in those countries—are worth and the figure Russia is prepared to put upon them.

Recently Michael Kostylev, Russian Ambassador in Rome ever since Moscow's startling renewal of diplomatic relations with Italy while the war was still in full progress, visited Count Sforza, the Italian Foreign Minister, for what was described as a routine conversation. To demonstrate that the note does not properly constitute a protest, it is said here that Kostylev never mentioned reparations.

Kostylev's visit, according to some journalistic speculation, was concerned with the Trieste question. Count Sforza, in his speech last Saturday reasserting Italy's uncompromising claim to Zone B of the Trieste territory, intimated as a warning to Tito that Soviet Russia might come round to endorsing the Western Powers' 1948 declaration for Italian recovery of Trieste. But the Trieste question also appears to have been avoided by Kostylev last Tuesday.

Russia's display of impatience over reparations comes at a most untimely moment for Count Sforza, since the Italian press is at present in full hue and cry against the Western Allies—today particularly America—for alleged halfheartedness in recognizing the 1948 declaration while Tito's Government is revealing ambitions to annex Zone B forthwith.

STRONG IMPATIENCE

Russian enmity to Tito has been felt here as one of the better factors for Italy in her helpless situation. Now, however, has come a manifestation of strong Russian impatience upon another topic. Yet there cannot be much surprise, for Italy's post-war relations with Moscow have been most difficult—she has only just regained possession of her Moscow Embassy—and the liberty Italian Government figures have taken in publicly dwelling upon the horrors of Soviet rule have given ample occasion for Russian resentment. ## Quoting

The whole philosophy of looking to the federal government for more and more security in lieu of opportunity constitutes one of the greatest dangers to America today—Herschel D. Newsom of the National Guard.

I'm a very optimistic gent. . . . I don't share and I won't try to share those predictions about the end of the world. —Former A.E.C. head David Lillenthal, on future of the atomic age.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

FORMER President Herbert Hoover's call for a scrapping of the present United Nations set-up, and the creation of another peace-organization from which Communist countries would be barred, is startling but wholly understandable.

It is of course based on the certainty that the U.N. never can succeed as long as it remains a house divided against itself. Communism and democracy are diametrically opposed on all points. There is no possibility of compromise between them.

Hoover declared that the "new united front" he advocates is nothing like "a proposed extension of a military alliance," and added:

"It is a proposal based solely upon moral, spiritual and defence foundations."

"What the world needs today is a definite, concrete mobilization of the nations who believe in God against this tide of Russian agnosticism."

Of 59 U.N. countries, the Soviet bloc claims five, with untamed Yugoslavia sometimes making a sixth. Russia, supported by this tiny minority but armed with the all-powerful veto power in the Security Council has persistently stymied most of the efforts of the majority. Meantime the Communist bloc has used the U.N. as an unparalleled sounding-board for Red propaganda.

Formation of the U.N. on its present lines was logical at the time of its creation. The ideal was a brotherhood of all nations. However, more than four years of bitter experience have demonstrated this:

You can pour oil and water into a bottle, and shake the bottle till Hades freezes over—and the two still won't have mixed.

Present-day communism isn't the largely beneficent ideology the world knew generations ago. Then it was a plan for communities to share and share alike. Today bolshevism calls for the overthrow of all democracies and the establishment of totalitarian governments whose sovereignty rests in Moscow.

Under these circumstances we are forced to recognize that, for the present, there must be "two worlds." And by that token there must be two United Nations—one comprising the democracies and the other the Communist states.

CUTTING OWN THROAT?

Financial Post

A Montreal venturing beyond the city limits is going to have to watch his pennies. Every bit of merchandise purchased outside is subject to the municipal sales tax. If he forgets to mention a shirt bought in Toronto or a hair brush acquired in Halifax, he is liable to a fine of $40 or three months in jail.

Now that law surely sets a new high in this suicidal attempt of certain municipalities to shut themselves off from the rest of the country. For a city that was founded on outside trade and is still vitally dependent on national and international business, this new decree represents the height of foolishness and shortsightedness. The law will be unenforceable, of course, but it will antagonize every other municipality in Canada and invite retaliation. In the end, Montreal being the largest city in the country will be the one most seriously hurt.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

"PEOPLE at a fire," said the Elevator Man, "are a funny bunch. They run so hard to get there, and then they don't move a muscle for an hour while they watch the men at work. Usually there isn't much to see anyway. It gets to the stage where just knocking out a window becomes a high point. There may be great deeds going on behind the smoke, but the crowd doesn't know about it. After a while office workers begin peeking at their watches. Friends call out to them, asking what they're doing out at this time of day, and they begin to feel as guilty as a Doughboy caught with matches and a bottle of gasoline. There's still nothing to see but smoke, so people begin to drift away. The same fireman climbing the same ladder is where they came in. The feature's over and there's no Mickey Mouse. Going down!"

"It was that way," said the Elevator Man, "at the Johnson Street fire yesterday. Nothing spectacular, but a satisfying display of smoke. I don't know which is more fun, watching an excavation being dug or a fire being put out. The urge in man to see destruction seems to be about equal to the urge to see construction. A barn-raising or a barn-burning get equal crowds. Mezzanine."

"I can't," said the Elevator Man, "help but wonder whether we aren't all really spectators at a big fire today. Smoke is pouring out from a dozen points around the world. The ladders are up, the hoses are laid, the men are ready with their axes. Any minute the flames may break through, the window-smashing may start, the water be turned on and a nip-and-tuck battle get under way. And jumping nets won't be any use, because there won't be any place to jump. I'd say civilization is doing a slow burn, but we may save it yet."

Flood Control

OTTAWA (CP) — Stanley Knowles, C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre, asked in the Commons Thursday whether the International Joint Commission has given consideration of means to prevent the recurring floods in Manitoba's Red River area. External Affairs Minister Pearson said he would look into the matter and give an answer later.

New Manager

SHIP'S TRIP UNEXPLAINED

MANILA (AP) — A mysterious ship flying two red flags anchored for six hours last Saturday off the northern tip of Luzon, the defence department disclosed Thursday. A spokesman said the constabulary is searching for persons possibly landed by the ship.

Saanich Debates Secondary Roads

Saanich Council members are going to ask the provincial government to take over maintenance of roads they consider to be of the secondary class. This was the council's decision Thursday night after Councillor E. P. Cummins had pointed out the Goldenberg Report had placed roads typed like these as a provincial responsibility. Council members have several roads in mind.

THE HOME GARDEN

Spacing Seedlings In Flats Simple Process

By JACK G. BEASTALL
Beginners invariably ask how we manage to sow 60 to 70 equally spaced seeds in a flat and have them all germinate. We don't. The seedlings are all pricked out by hand at the proper spacing. The term "prick and sow" is nothing more or less than transferring the seedlings from the seed-bed to another flat, or to the nursery row.

In large greenhouses a spotting board is used to make the holes for the seedlings. It consists of a board, the size of a standard flat, into which pegs have been driven at predetermined intervals.

The number of pegs to a board will vary according to the plants to be pricked out, and standard boards contain from 24 to 72 pegs.

FIRM THE EARTH
In use, the boards are placed on top of the soil in the flat, and pressed down, leaving the required number of holes. It is then only necessary for the worker to pick up a seedling, hold the roots in the hole, and firm the earth against them.

Small concerns make the holes individually with a dibber. This is a short piece of wood, one inch in diameter, two to three inches long, and tapered to a blunt end.

The operator presses the dibber into the soil and gives it a slight twist as it is withdrawn. The seedling is then held in position with the left hand.

and, the dibber inserted beside the previous hole and pressed over to firm the roots.

When the soil is in the right condition, not too damp or too dry, and the seedlings not matted in the seed-flat, an experienced operator can prick out 60 in 10 minutes. The dibber must always have a blunt end in order to make sufficient space at the bottom of the hole for the roots to spread.

There are a lot of articles published on how to remove seedlings from the seed-flat with a notched seed label. A commercial grower would soon be out of business if he followed such a slow procedure.

In actual practice, the clump of seedlings is removed with a small trowel, the ball of earth gently squeezed, and the seedlings shaken free. Here again, the earth must have just the right moisture content or time is wasted.

Tells How Radio Aids Aviation

When city Rotarians decided to take a hop by airplane to another centre in the future, they will likely have a better feeling of security.

At their weekly luncheon meeting Thursday, Rotarian Jack McIntosh addressed fellow members on "Aids to Aviation." Mr. McIntosh is well-qualified to speak on this theme as he was an R.A.F. pilot during World War Two.

With the aid of Ida Bianco and Dick Batey, the speaker illustrated the importance of the radio in "aids to aviation." Elected as directors for a two-year term were John Gough, Jack McIntosh, William C. McEwen and Robert Phipps.

GIRL SAVED FROM SANDPIT

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — An unidentified longshoreman Thursday saved a four-year-old girl from being buried alive.

Luana Brown slipped and fell into loose sand while playing in a dike near the Pattullo Bridge here.

She sank from sight before she was rescued by the longshoreman, who had seen her fall. It is believed an air pocket saved the youngster's life.

Manhattan Island, now part of New York City, was discovered by explorer Henry Hudson in 1609.

$16,600 Repairs Planned For Shelbourne Street

Shelbourne Street, badly broken in spots, is going to get a "new look" before long.

Saanich council Thursday night put $16,600 in the estimates to patch up the winter-wrecked spots, provide the three-mile stretch with a seal coat and clean out the ditches on either side.

H. D. Dawson, municipal engineer, gave an estimate of the cost for this, but pointed out that a total rehabilitation of the road, including raising its level 12 to 18 feet, would cost about $39,000. Council wouldn't go for that expense, but could get no guarantee from the engineer on how long the road would last under its partial treatment in ugly winter climates.

This action raised the budget of the public works committee, headed by Councillor Sidney Pickles, to $158,000, out of which must come money to patch up a one-and-one-quarter-mile stretch of Blenkinsop Road that has thus far been untouched by reconstruction and is in bad shape. That bill alone is estimated at $21,000.

Mr. Pickles was still far from satisfied with the funds allocated to do the enormous amount of road reconstruction work facing his department following the severe winter.

Large Majorities For Govt. On Votes

No-Confidence Motions Defeated In Commons By 129-43 And 167-12

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons rejected two opposition motions of non-confidence in the government Thursday night—both hinged on the March 28 budget—and then quickly knuckled down to the concrete task of passing budget resolutions.

The motions, traditional opposition stabs at the government in the budget debate, were snowed under by these counts:

1. By a vote of 129 to 43, the chamber defeated a Progressive Conservative motion expressing regret that government policies made higher taxes inevitable, included no adequate attempt to reduce costs and contained no program for national development.

2. By a vote of 167 to 12, the chamber defeated a C.C.F. amendment expressing regret that government policies indicated the government was prepared to accept the present level of products as adequate for Canadians.

The House then adopted "on division"—indicating disapproval without a formal vote—the main government motion asking the chamber to open active study of the tax changes outlined in the budget.

The budget was skimpy on tax relief. It dropped the excise tax on toilet soaps and removed the sales tax on ice cream, dairy drinks and prepared whipping cream and on purchases by orphanages and institutions for the aged and infirm.

These were adopted in committee stage after the divisions. An expected Social Credit no-confidence motion, generally moved after the major-party thrusts are disposed of, did not materialize. Solon Low, Social Credit leader, contented himself to lecture the chamber on the benefits of Social-Credit money.

TRIBUTE TO GEN. CRERAR

LONDON (CP)—Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's 62nd birthday today received notice in the Daily Graphic. The newspaper ran his picture, recalling that he commanded the 1st Canadian Army in 1944-45. The newspaper said he also became the first Canadian ever to hold the rank of full general in the field. A. G. L. McNaughton became a full general on retirement.

Newfoundland is thought to have been discovered by John Cabot in June, 1497, and was formally claimed for England by Sir Humphrey Gilbert in August, 1583.

Heavier Coats Too Costly On Saanich Roads

While some roads of the 26 miles reconstructed last year and waiting for surface coats now, have been judged to require heavier top coats than originally figured, Saanich council is sticking to the letter of the money by-law.

H. D. Dawson, municipal engineer, was informed Thursday night that only the thickness called for by the by-law would be done. Several of the roads have since been recommended for heavier coats, to cost about $37,000 in addition to the by-law funds, and the council is turning "thumbs down" on the matter.

Mr. Dawson said he was waiting for this word from the council so that he could give the contractors the go-ahead to complete the surfacing.

COURT FINES TO PAY WAGES

Saanich Council Thursday night decided to take $5,000 from the police court revenue—$10,000 was the yield last year—to start reassessment of the whole municipality.

Plan is to start in 1950 and finish next year or the year after, depending on funds available for the costly survey. Council is unanimous that present assessments are badly out of line.

Band Contest At Sidney Won By Howard Shanks, 9

SIDNEY—Howard Shanks, nine, won the final round Wednesday of a series of weekly junior band competitions held in the Gem Theatre.

He was up against stiff opposition from the winners of previous competitions. These included Bill Cowell, 15; Don Stenton, 13; and Bill Fleming, 15.

Norman West and Stan Magee acted as judges of the contest and awarded the honors to the diminutive clarinet player. Don Stenton also played clarinet, while Bill Cowell and Bill Fleming played saxophones.

M. Martman, manager of the theatre, congratulated the winners as well as the older contestants. He awarded a special prize of $5 to Howard Shanks and a cheque of $50 to Stan Magee, leader of the band.

Mill Rate Jump Certain Saanich Estimates Show

Councillors Burn Midnight Oil Discussing New Revenue Sources

Saanich Council completed its work on the 1950 estimates near midnight Thursday and set the mill rate. The score: Several mills higher than last year for both school districts.

The general mill rate was increased 1.66 mills, from 16.90 in 1949 to 18.56 for this year.

The School District No. 61 rate was set at 43.05, compared with 39.00 last year, or an increase of 4.05 mills.

The School District No. 63 rate was set at 43.45, compared with 41.00 last year, or an increase of 2.45 mills.

The breakdown of the rates for the two districts is:

District No. 61: 18.64, 22.76, 2.10; total 43.05.

District No. 63: 18.64, 22.71, 2.10; total 43.45.

(The 2.10 mills is for money by-laws approved last year.)

Several ways to increase revenue for 1950 were considered by the council.

Councillor Sydney Pickles had one idea about getting more revenue through dog taxes. It was finally discarded because members would see, among other things, a heavy dog food bill.

MASS DOG ARRESTS

The councillor suggested that a concerted drive be made to round up license-tagless dogs on the peninsula, and then hold them in the pound until people came to collect them. In discarding the idea, one member also wondered if the pound could handle such a mass arrest.

Members were optimistic about collecting more poll tax money.

They upped this estimate by $500 to $5,000.

With a lot more vehicles running over Saanich Roads, council members thought they could at least realize $50,000 in motor vehicle licenses. That boosted the original estimate by $2,000.

Members dealt with other items, juggled things around to see if they could squeeze out a few more pennies, but finally left them "as was."

John M. Malcolm, Pioneer Builder Of Saanich, Dead

John Manson Malcolm, a pioneer Victoria builder and Saanich farmer, died at the age of 85 years at Rest Haven Sanatorium Thursday.

Mr. Malcolm was born in Gires, district of Carls Bay, Calthness, Scotland, on May 15, 1865. He arrived in Victoria in 1887 and was a resident of the city until 1915. He then moved to Mount Newton Cross Roads, Saanich.

He was president of the Saanich Pioneers Society; honorary president of North and South Saanich Agricultural Association; past grand master of Columbia Lodge No. 2, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and past president of the Victoria Builders' Exchange.

Reeve Changes Stand Regarding Saanich Firehall

Reeve Joseph Casey of Saanich Council admitted to Saanich Council members Thursday night that he had made mistakes in recent statements he gave to the press on drainage and Shelbourne Street firehall questions.

Council members had been irate about the published statements that "some members of Saanich Council were sabotaging the drainage scheme" and his views criticizing the council's move to stop plans in regard to the Shelbourne Street firehall.

The reeve told Councillor L. H. Passmore, when directly questioned last night, that while he had been against operating the hall before, he favored the plan offered by Fire Chief Joseph Law for a partial service in that hall when it is completed.

FROM THE FANSTAND

By PETE SALLAWAY, Times Sports Editor

Dearth of home runs in the Western International League to date can be attributed to one of two reasons or both—the pitchers are well ahead of the hitters or the new ball introduced this season lacks the jack rabbit qualities of last year's variety. Our Athletics completed their ninth game Wednesday night and had not manufactured a single round-tripper and neither did the members of their three opponents—Spokane, Wenatchee and Salem.

Good Early Season Hurling

There is little doubt the fans have seen a lot better early season mound work throughout the circuit than in former campaigns but I also hold to the opinion the new ball is quite a bit dead. That's something the pitchers won't be beefing about. Many of the old-timers have claimed in recent years that the balls were too lively and moaned over the flood of four-mast blows. But the fans still like to see those balls floating out of the parks.

Victoria Ignored Once Again

Despite reams of publicity in recent years on the boxing feats of Eddie Haddad which always described him as a representative of Victoria, such a well-versed sports scribe as Royal Brougham of Seattle sees fit to turn him over to Vancouver. Mention came about when Brougham saw fit to give his opinions on the difference between British and United States standards of boxing following the winning of the flyweight title by Britain's Terry Allen whom he describes as "a hit-and-run man who follows the pattern."

Brougham goes on to tell about dropping into the boxing bouts of the last Olympic games at London to see Haddad in action. "The former Seattle Golden Gloves champ from Canada, practically annihilated a European foe," Brougham said. Here's the payoff: "The Vancouver boy hit him with everything but the crown jewels. The groggy, but game opponent got up off the canvas and did some fancy dan boxing. What did the esteemed judges and referee do but raise the other guy's hand in token of victory."

Mr. Brougham has always taken a keen interest in the Seattle gloves tournaments and knows right well that Haddad comes from Victoria. Just another instance of Vancouver being given credit for the athletic success of an outsider. It must not be forgotten, also, that Haddad is a native son of Winnipeg and takes Victoria as his home through being stationed here with the Royal Canadian Navy.

Hockey Followers Still Burn

At the ball park one night this week a perfect stranger hailed me and opened up a discussion on the question of hockey broadcasts. "Why don't you sports writers start hammering at getting a broadcast of the entire Stanley Cup finals early next fall?" he asked. "If enough pressure were brought to bear on the CBC throughout the winter I think we would get the program. Let them utilize the Dominion network if the CBC lines are not available. I would like to see the CBC conduct a poll throughout the country to find out if the holders of radio licenses want such a broadcast and I'll wager the result would be so overwhelming in favor they would not be able to ignore the demand in future." My interviewer has a strong point and must remember to revive the question come next October.

SPORTS ROUND-UP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK (AP)—The Phillies' Russ Meyer, after a brief look, argues that Johnny Sain of the Boston Braves isn't pitching as well as he did two years ago. For that matter, neither is Russ. ... Rookie Johnny Wilson, who played in 145 of the Harlem Globe Trotters' 173 basketball games this winter, is passing up the European tour, he says, "mostly for financial reasons." He adds that if he can't get a job at home in Anderson, Ill., he'll have to play baseball this summer for Chicago American Giants for the same reason. ... Figure that out.

LIMITED CO-OPERATION
One of the chuckles in Gene Sarazen's new book, "Thirty Years of Championship Golf," comes from a tale of Mrs. Sarazen asking Gene's caddy, during a Florida tournament, how things were going. "Well," replied the caddy, "we got a birdie on the 13th; we birdied on the 14th, too ... but on 15 Mr. Sarazen took a seven."

CLEANING THE CUFF
Bill Cane, the Yonkers raceway bossman, was needing his press agent about some comfortable but expensive chairs he had bought for the press box. ... Somehow a wire mixup let Architect John Sloan in on the conversation. "I purchased those chairs myself, Bill," Sloan interrupted. "And if you think $23 is expensive, wait until you get the bill for your own chair. It cost $290."

BASEBALL TRADE
PHILADELPHIA (UP)—The Philadelphia Phillies traded outfielder Johnny Blatnik to the St. Louis Cardinals for pitcher Ken Johnson, a left-handed curveballer, yesterday. No cash was involved in the deal.

Flying Start

Running with open hands, 18-year-old Marjorie Jackson of Australia, one of the world's fastest women sprinters, gets off to a good start as she trains in Los Angeles to compete in the Coliseum Relays May 19 against Holland's Fanny Blankers-Koen.

Regina Pats Nosed Out In Free-Scoring Clash

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens today have a game in hand over Regina's youthful Pats in the Memorial Cup hockey final, but 10,414 fans who saw the series opener here last night found it hard to give an edge either way.

It was that close all the way as the easterners squeezed through to an 8 to 7 victory. The result and torrid pace set by both squads indicated that the series also might go the full seven games.

There was little give by either side as the two clubs finished in a wild, free scoring third period that saw 10 goals scored in the space of 16 minutes.

Regina, 6 to 5 pre-game underdogs, provided the free-wheeling play, battling from behind a two-goal deficit in the final session to force the eastern Canada champions to also adopt a wide-open style of hockey.

The fans were kept on the edge of their seats throughout the torrid stretch-drive with outcome of the contest in doubt until the final whistle. Both coaches changed players as fast as tired ones could crawl back onto the benches.

Montreal's top snipers were flashy Dickie Moore, Don Marshall and Art Rose with two goals each while Kevin Rocheford and Bill Gould connected for singles.

DEFENCEMAN STARS
However, it was defenceman Morley McNeil of Pats who stole the show. He sank three markers for the western champs. Eddie Litzenberger bagged two goals and Brian McDonald and Paul Masnick one each. Canadiens held a 34 to 23 edge in shots on goal, but this was no indication of play between evenly-matched opponents.

Following the game, coach Sammy Pollock of Canadiens said it was "the toughest I've sat through this season." He predicted the series "may well go the limit and is sure to be a tough one."

Pats' coach Murray Armstrong said he felt the same way and added:

"They're a tough team and should get tougher to beat as the series goes on."

'Y' Track Squad Faces Full Summer Schedule

With an eye to the next Olympics, Bruce Humber, coach of the Y.M.C.A. track club, announced today that his first outdoor training session will be held at Victoria High School Tuesday at 6.30.

The B.C. Track and Field Association, determined to see B.C. well represented at Helsinki in 1952, has scheduled 14 meets at which the "Y" will compete throughout the summer — one each in Victoria, Nanaimo, Seattle, Portland, and Kelowna, with the rest slated for Vancouver.

As usual all those interested in track, whether members of the "Y" or not, are asked to turn out Tuesday. Members of last year's team are especially urged to be on hand to get into shape for the first meet of the season May 24.

Besides Humber, track and field coach at the last British Empire Games, the club will again have the coaching of Archie McKinnon, former Olympic track and swimming mentor, who will help with the middle distance and weight men. Harry Mitchell, team captain and the club's number one sprinter, will assist with the sprinters.

Humber has expressed hopes of Bill Parnell, Empire Games and Phil Matson; sprinters Garry Pynn, Sterling Knudsen and George Wilmont, and weight man Charlie Brumwell.

Girl members attending workouts are Pat Fleming, former Canadian high jump champion; Kathy Marshall, Adrienne Taylor, Marjorie Durnan and Dawn Joseph, holder of the junior girls' Canadian broad jump record.

mile champion and record holder, being in this city late in May. Big Bill's tips would certainly be a help to the "Y's" up-and-coming youngsters.

Heading the parade of athletes, besides Mitchell, will be Cliff Salmond, who is reported to be already in top shape and ready to attempt to gain back his Canadian three-mile record, twice broken last summer by Toronto's 17-year-old Rich Ferguson.

RELAY TEAM INTACT

Gordy Pynn, who recently cracked two indoor records at Oregon University in the broad jump and 50-yard dash, is expected home early in May, as is Rafael Duke, a St. Mary's College student. The former two, along with Mitchell and Bob Hutchison, will comprise the "Y's" three-year undefeated sprint relay team. Others who have been turning out all year at the "Y's" indoor workouts are middle-distance men Earl Barrons, Don Pimlott, Phil Taylor, Willie Bellababa

DISTANT STAR

THE STORY: Falling in love had been from Clemency Norton's thoughts when she became a governess to Baba, small daughter of Jon and Sybil Ambery, who live with Jon's brother Piers in an isolated North African home. Sybil had warned Clemency to stay away from Piers, but it had been impossible for her to do so and Clemency now finds herself in love with him. Justine, Sybil's French maid, tells Clemency that Jon is weak, given to bouts of drinking, and she warns Clemency that things are "not right" in this place. "Do not let your mind be poisoned," Justine adds.

INSTALLMENT 17

So Piers needed someone to protect himself from his own folly! Clemency wanted to know about this folly. Was it that long ago girl that Sybil said that Piers once loved? Did first love really mean so much to some men that it shut out everything else forever? It was before the war, of course—10 years ago; he had been very young.

"Who would poison my mind?" Clemency asked.

Justine shrugged her shoulders. She would very much like to have said more, though already she had said more than she had intended to say. What she would like to have added most of all was: He likes you and a girl like you, young, innocent, loyal, could be his salvation. But there are those who will stop that at all costs—if they can.

"Things may settle down," she said as she rose.

"I hope so," Clemency hesitated. "Otherwise I suppose the Jon Amberlys may go away altogether from Red Aloes."

And that would be the best thing that could happen; Justine did not speak the thought aloud. "I doubt it," she said drily.

"You know, Mamselle Justine," Clemency ventured, "this must be very sad for Mrs. Ambery."

"For 'er! Surely you realize she does not care that for 'im! Justine snapped her fingers. "She could 'ave 'elped 'im. It was 'is brother who came to the rescue. As for Jon—he hates him!"

Justine's English suddenly adjusted itself. "You must 'ave found that out."

When she had gone, although it was bedtime, Clemency sat for a long time remembering what had been said, wishing with all her heart Justine had been more reticent. But at least she knew at last what was wrong between the Amberlys.

The thoroughly unfair thing was that it should be Piers who had been made unhappy. Obviously he must have been terribly fond of his brother to have brought him here—to have mixed himself up in this unhappy tangle. And obviously it made him very miserable.

She remembered how bitterly frustrated he had looked that first night when she had seen him from her balcony. And she remembered what Jon had said to her that night.

"You don't know the half of it..."

And tonight Justine had hoped "the last act" would not prove a tragedy.

She had meant to avoid Piers, and for three days she managed to do it. There was one brief encounter—when she slipped down to the library after dinner to return a book she had borrowed, thinking Piers would be shut up in his own room, and she met him as she went back across the hall.

He had stopped to ask if she had quite recovered from her day in Biskra, and, having escaped as quickly as she possibly could, she had gone back to the nursery wondering what on earth he must think of her obvious worry.

The second time it was not so easy to get away.

She was walking with Baba along that same road leading to the little river which lay so low between the banks, where he had found her that evening a week or so back, when the sound of horses' hooves behind them made her draw the child to one side. Then the horseman was abreast with them, and Baba shouted a delighted:

"Uncle Piers! Take me for a ride!"

"What a great heavy elephant like you!" Piers' smiling eyes met Clemency's. "Good morning, Miss Norton."

"Good morning, Colonel Ambery," she wished that ridiculous heart of hers would stop playing tricks. He really did look splendid on horseback.

Baba was protesting indignantly. "Not a lepalant. The Caid likes me." Tugging at Clemency's hand, she reached up one of her own, trying to touch the lovely half-Arab horse which looked down at her with the benevolence of his kind.

"Lift me, Clemency, please," Clemency lifted her to pat the horse's silken neck, and the Caid whinnied affectionately.

"Just a little ride, Uncle Piers," Baba begged.

He laughed and took her quickly from Clemency's arms and set her before him.

"Now sit very still, young woman, we don't want any funny business. If you're 'gooder' than you've ever been in your life, I'll take you to El Bahara with me."

"Ooh! I will be 'gooder!'" promised his niece.

"Well, ask Miss Norton if you can go."

"May I, Clemency—please?" Baba pleaded.

"Are you sure she won't be a nuisance? And—she will be all right, won't she?" asked Clemency in one breath.

"If she would be a nuisance, I wouldn't take her," he answered. "But, of course, she won't be 'all right.' I'll probably either let her fall or the Caid will throw us both and trample us."

"I didn't mean that," Clemency protested. "I just meant—" Then she saw he was laughing.

"We'll be back within the hour," he told her. "Don't worry. I'll bring her back safely."

Then he rode off a delighted Baba waving good-bye from the firm shelter of his arm.

And tonight Justine had hoped "the last act" would not prove a tragedy.

She had meant to avoid Piers, and for three days she managed to do it. There was one brief encounter—when she slipped down to the library after dinner to return a book she had borrowed, thinking Piers would be shut up in his own room, and she met him as she went back across the hall.

"What a great heavy elephant like you!" Piers' smiling eyes met Clemency's. "Good morning, Miss Norton."

"Good morning, Colonel Ambery," she wished that ridiculous heart of hers would stop playing tricks. He really did look splendid on horseback.

Baba was protesting indignantly. "Not a lepalant. The Caid likes me." Tugging at Clemency's hand, she reached up one of her own, trying to touch the lovely half-Arab horse which looked down at her with the benevolence of his kind.

"Lift me, Clemency, please," Clemency lifted her to pat the horse's silken neck, and the Caid whinnied affectionately.

"Just a little ride, Uncle Piers," Baba begged.

He laughed and took her quickly from Clemency's arms and set her before him.

"Now sit very still, young woman, we don't want any funny business. If you're 'gooder' than you've ever been in your life, I'll take you to El Bahara with me."

"Ooh! I will be 'gooder!'" promised his niece.

"Well, ask Miss Norton if you can go."

"May I, Clemency—please?" Baba pleaded.

"Are you sure she won't be a nuisance? And—she will be all right, won't she?" asked Clemency in one breath.

"If she would be a nuisance, I wouldn't take her," he answered. "But, of course, she won't be 'all right.' I'll probably either let her fall or the Caid will throw us both and trample us."

"I didn't mean that," Clemency protested. "I just meant—" Then she saw he was laughing.

"We'll be back within the hour," he told her. "Don't worry. I'll bring her back safely."

Then he rode off a delighted Baba waving good-bye from the firm shelter of his arm.

And tonight Justine had hoped "the last act" would not prove a tragedy.

She had meant to avoid Piers, and for three days she managed to do it. There was one brief encounter—when she slipped down to the library after dinner to return a book she had borrowed, thinking Piers would be shut up in his own room, and she met him as she went back across the hall.

He had stopped to ask if she had quite recovered from her day in Biskra, and, having escaped as quickly as she possibly could, she had gone back to the nursery wondering what on earth he must think of her obvious worry.

The second time it was not so easy to get away.

She was walking with Baba along that same road leading to the little river which lay so low between the banks, where he had found her that evening a week or so back, when the sound of horses' hooves behind them made her draw the child to one side. Then the horseman was abreast with them, and Baba shouted a delighted:

"Uncle Piers! Take me for a ride!"

"What a great heavy elephant like you!" Piers' smiling eyes met Clemency's. "Good morning, Miss Norton."

It's Not Tough Luck... You're Playing It Wrong

By OSWALD JACOBY
Times Bridge Expert

"Things happen to me," said my friend Joe the other day, "that don't happen to ordinary people. I'm not bragging."

"Just take the hand I held the other night," continued Joe.

"The opening lead was a spade, and I covered the king with my ace. Naturally, I took the king and then the queen of clubs. Well, you can see that the clubs didn't break."

"Now I had only three club tricks. There were only two spades and two top hearts. So I needed either a diamond finesse or maybe a 3-3 break in hearts. Naturally, I made the percentage play."

"Naturally," I commented. Joe looked at me suspiciously, because I seldom agree with him. Then he continued, "I led a heart to dummy's ace, took the ace of clubs, and finessed the queen of diamonds, figuring East to have the king for his bid. Well, he didn't have it. Back came a spade, and my queen was knocked out. Now I laid down the ace of diamonds, hoping the jack would drop. But it didn't."

"To make a long story..." I raised my eyebrows at this, but Joe went right on. "The hearts wouldn't break, the clubs didn't break, the diamonds were all sour... Why do things like that happen to me?"

"These things," I told Joe, "are sent to try us. It'll make a better man of you."

How could I tell Joe the truth? Did you notice that his contract was unbeatable if he had only played it right?

Joe won the first trick with the ace of spades and then took the king of clubs. When he next led the queen of clubs he should have overtaken his own trick with dummy's ace!

Then he could knock out the jack of clubs by leading dummy's ten. Nothing could stop him from getting back to dummy with the ace of hearts to cash the rest of the clubs. There were 10 tricks for the asking, but Joe still thinks he was unlucky.

Movie Star Boosting Gayer Dress Campaign

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Paris and New York designers are getting a boost from Vincent Price in their campaign for brighter clothes for men.

"Men are just dying to try new styles," says the lanky actor. "Just look around at all the bright-colored and flashy print shirts men are wearing. They're bursting for a chance to wear something different."

Price is helping the drive along with his current role in "His Kind of Woman." He plays a flamboyant movie star and his outfits include:

A dinner jacket of bold plaid with midnight blue trousers and a cummerbund.

A pure white gabardine suit and silk shirt with Barrymore (extra long) collar.

A royal blue velvet smoking jacket with chartreuse trim, vertically pleated shirt with crepe tie.

"If men are even going to rejuvenate their wardrobes, the time is now," the actor declared. "Why, until recently there had not been anything really new in men's clothing for 100 years."

"A man buys himself a suit that will last him a long time and one that he can wear anywhere. He couldn't afford to buy as often as women, because men's clothes are more expensive."

Mennonites Get Phone Service

ALTONA, Man. (CP)—A series of Mennonite villages in southern Manitoba has been connected to the Altona and Plum Coulee telephone exchanges. After their inception, the villages first refused telephone service and later, due to various circumstances, were unable to get it.

The villages which recently received telephone include: Rose-nort, Blumenort, Neuhorst, Neuhoffnung, Kronsthal, Altbargthal, Gnadenthal, Edenburg and others.

Officials say 160 new telephones have been added to the Altona exchange since the farm telephone hook-up commenced. All told there are 40 rural telephone lines in this district, with from seven to nine subscribers on each line.

The surface area of the earth is estimated to be 196,836,000 square miles, of which 141,050,000 square miles are water.

Money By-Law In Saanich For Vote On Drainage

If the people of Saanich want to cure their drainage problem they must vote "yes" in the required majority on a money by-law to be presented to the ratepayers this summer.

Saanich Council, by majority vote, recently decided against other plans—using general revenue of the local improvement scheme. This was reiterated at the meeting Thursday night. By-law is a 10-year plan to remedy the drainage troubles in Saanich.

Alexander Kilpatrick was spokesman for a group of ratepayers who appeared before the council to present their views on the drainage question. Delegation represented ratepayers from Marigold to Braefoot-Blenkinsop, a main trouble area.

He believed the only way to handle it was to start now with money from general revenue.

"One of the main planks in my platform at last year's election was to put a money by-law on drainage—and look where I ended up, at the bottom of the heap," said the spokesman.

Councillor William C. Kersey again stated he favored the general revenue idea. Only solution, said Councillor George Austin, was to get the people out to vote and put the by-law over. Councillor Sydney Pickles was strictly for the local improvement to pay for the project.

Traffic authorities say the total number of people injured in motor vehicle accidents in Ontario in 1949 would equal the population of Belleville, Chatham, North Bay or Stratford.

Saanich Council Votes To Complete Fire Hall

Will Be Operated On Skeleton Basis Until Electors Voice Opinion

Thanks to a suggestion from Fire Chief Joseph Law, Saanich Council members changed their minds somewhat Thursday night on the question of operating the new firehall under construction on Shelbourne Street.

After hearing the chief, the council back-tracked from its original stand to complete the building and then let it stand unused.

On Chief Law's recommendation, the third fire hall will be operated on a skeleton basis. Council, however, would not approve it without the provision a referendum be put at the December elections to decide whether it should be put to use with a full complement next year.

Only dissenting voice to the alternative scheme was that of Councillor Frank S. Green.

"I'm sticking to my stand for full operation now," he said, scoring the fellow councillors for not having the courage to act on their own.

"We were elected by the people to handle matters like these without having to go back to them every time. If they don't like the way I am operating they can pitch me out when I go before them again later in the year," said the irate young council member.

Chief Law said he had been disappointed in hearing of the council's decision to build the hall and then let it stand idle.

"Although I am sure you know it is needed, I also know that you are considering the financial aspect of it," said the chief.

His plan was to provide the new area with a partial service, involving the hiring of two new men and buying a car.

Chief Law said that a four-man shift would be maintained at the Douglas headquarters hall and two-man shifts at both the Elk Lake and Shelbourne halls.

Each fire call at the two branch halls would result in the two men responding, but back at headquarters two additional men would quickly follow them up and provide a four-man crew at the scene. The car he asked for was to be for the exclusive use of the cover-off men for the other halls.

The chief believed the plan would work well with the fire trucks equipped with two-way radio.

Councillor E. P. Cummins wanted to know from the chief if that was not "going to extremes."

B.C. Wild Flowers Face Destruction By Public

Few distinctive wild flowers will be left on Vancouver Island if the present rate of destruction continues, George A. Hardy, Provincial Museum botanist, told a meeting of the Outdoor Club of Victoria.

Already several beautiful varieties of wild hyacinths and native orchids have become extinct on the island through the thoughtlessness and indifference of the public, he said.

He said the Easter lily and the lady slipper, a member of the orchid family, were now in danger of being wiped out.

Mr. Hardy called for legislation.

"A true flower lover does not pick many wild flowers," Mr. Hardy said. "He leaves them to be enjoyed by others and so that its seeds can produce new plants."

At the meeting, Gordon Bowes, president, announced that the Outdoor Club's campaign for the preservation of Mount Brenton was continuing to gain public support. He expressed the hope that the provincial government would act soon before the area was logged off.

Ian Williams also addressed the meeting on hiking and hiking equipment.

$75,000 Damage In 3-Hour Plant Fire

Massed fire-fighting equipment was seen on lower Johnson Street Thursday afternoon as city firemen subdued a fire in manufacturing plant of Victoria Box and Paper Co., which caused estimated $150,000 damage after a three-hour battle.

$75,000 Damage In Blaze At Paper Plant

Weary City Firemen Fight Outbreak For Three Hours Amidst Dense, Heavy Smoke

With grimed faces streaked with tears, from the dense smoke, weary Victoria firemen won a three-hour battle with a stubborn fire that did $75,000 damage in the lower Johnson Street manufacturing plant of the Victoria Box and Paper Co. Thursday afternoon.

Fire Chief Robert Brindle called in all available equipment and offshift men to battle the blaze.

It was one of the costliest fires in Victoria for several years. Firemen found the fire difficult to get at because there was only one entrance to the basement where the fire broke out.

Alert employees sounded the alarm at 1:30 and the building was quickly evacuated.

Only casualties were firemen temporarily overcome by the dense smoke fumes filling the interior of the building, which extends from Yates to Johnson. Deputy Fire Chief Frank Briers was one of those overcome, but he recovered quickly and returned to the fight.

Only accident occurred when Robert Foster, 1120 Blanshard, tripped over a fire hose and suffered cuts to his head and face. City police took him to Jubilee Hospital for treatment.

SMOKE, WATER DAMAGE

Smoke and water did heavy damage to stock, building and heavy machinery.

Damage is fully covered by insurance, according to Louis Glazan, firm's managing director.

Three platen presses were damaged when they fell through the street-level floor which was burned through.

Because of the danger of the floor going down with nearly 15 tons of machinery on the heads of firemen in the basement, Mr. Glazan advised that the basement be evacuated. Chief Brindle ordered this.

The fire was not completely extinguished until the fire had eaten through the floor.

In the meantime, firemen poured thousands of gallons of water into the building.

Mr. Glazan said the fire chief had ordered a second entrance be constructed to the basement a short while before the construction shut-down which the company official said, prevented the work being done.

Thousands of citizens went to watch the fire. The building was filled with smoke from Yates to Johnson. Windows were smashed in an effort to let the smoke escape.

HOSES ON ROOF

Firemen used sledge-hammers and crowbars to tear out iron-grill bars on windows and to knockout portions of the walls to get water at the blaze. Hoses were strung to the roof and water shot down the elevator shaft.

Firemen could stay in the building only a short time, even with smoke masks on. Oxygen canisters had to be renewed frequently.

Warehouseman George Blair, 19 of 146 Clarence Street, discovered the fire when he went to the basement to get some excelsior at 1:30.

He immediately gave the alarm that resulted in the 32 employees being evacuated.

Peter Fowles, another employee, telephoned the fire department.

TRIED TO FIGHT IT

While Don Zenell took the elevator up from the basement to prevent the flames from getting up, Blair, Pat Moon and Fowles tried to get at the fire with extinguishers, but failed because of the intense heat.

Firemen were on the scene in less than a minute. Hoses were laid on Johnson, Government, Yates and Store Streets.

Not long after the collapse of the floor, which enabled the fire-fighters to get at the flames, fire department officials said they had the blaze out.

Victoria police, led by Deputy Chief Harry Mercer, blocked off the street to traffic and controlled the crowd of curious bystanders.

Old English Beverage Co. across the street supplied soft drinks for the firemen.

Lieut. Jack Easton attaches new oxygen canister to smoke mask used by firemen when they plunged into smoke-filled building.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Jacques Singer, for two years musical director of the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra, may not return here for the 1951 season, it was reported today.

Mr. Singer now is holidaying in the United States and officials of the Symphony Society would not confirm the report.

His salary has never been revealed, but it is said to have been near $15,000 yearly.

Earlier this week directors of the symphony said the 1950-51 season might be curtailed because of rising costs and indicated there might be "a limited series of subscription concerts" to replace the present weekly concerts. Guest conductors would be used for subscription concerts.

There was also a report that there is a disagreement between symphony directors and musicians over the 1951 contract plans.

FUNNY, ISN'T IT, how you can spend 51 weeks in a year kidding Yorkshire and Lancashire friends about their lapses into dialect, and then spend the other week, after Cracie's been trying to imitate them. Around the house it's "Coom lass," and "Aye luv" and "What's tha ban to dew?" Then the people you've been kidding, jump you because you make such a hash of speaking the language of the counties. It seems that any variation from the accepted in speech is grounds for a laugh. North Country folk tell the story of a compatriot who was making fun of the way a Scot talked about cows. "Hark at 'im," said the North Countryman. "e calls cars coos."

NEXT TO Pat O'Malley, who tickled North American ribs through the airwaves with the Irishman's imitation of North Country speech, Trav Coleman held a high reputation as a mimic. Trav, now in Montreal looking after C.P.R. publicity, used Yorkshire as one of his chief forms of humor when he was stationed on this coast. Said he learned it from two Yorkshiremen who worked with him on a Winnipeg farm.

Guess dialect and pronunciation have always been matters of dispute. When we were youngsters in Latin class our teacher insisted on the Edinburgh pronunciation. It made "Caesar" sound like "Kaiser" as in wartime shipbuilding. The softer Oxford form wouldn't do.

THAT WAS fine until we came across a good old Scottish classics master who translated "Caesar" though he ought not to have. He fought a battle into "Caesar" thote he ote note to have fote a bottle. Got a little confusing then.

It was the same in French. A class nearly strangled itself trying to get the right sound for the "eu" in "peuple" only to wind up like a cock pheasant calling in the early morning.

Correct pronunciation is supposed to be a sign of culture and refinement. Sure, but whose pronunciation is correct? Remember when the late Dean Cecil S. Quinlan, one of the best speakers heard in this city, stood the intelligentsia on its ear with his version of "centenary"? Called it "centenary."

You can get into all sorts of controversies over such words as "been" if you say "bin" or "ate" if you say "et."

After you've been to the dictionary, only to find you don't know what the pronunciation signs in it mean, you justify your choice on local usage.

It doesn't matter much in important things. When somebody asks if you'll have another, there isn't any confusion over "yes" or "no."

A DAY STARTS out nice and sunny. The kids are well behaved at breakfast, quiet without being sick. Your wife doesn't give you any shopping list to attend to. You step out for the bus, start crooning "Beautiful Morning" and then stop for the neighbors' sake.

Just the same, it's one of those days you feel swell. The kind of day when everything's going to roll as smoothly as a new $4,000 car down St. Charles hill. Then you read something like Jim Coleman's Maclean's Magazine story, "Whatever Happened to Jim Coleman?" There goes the beautiful morning.

Jim wrote one of the most widely read and smartest columns in Canadian newspapers. In the Globe and Mail he turned out stories that started chuckles that ringed out from Toronto to the Maritimes and Victoria.

IN MACLEAN'S this month he tells why he quit. Just got tired of writing a column, didn't want the next one hanging over his head as soon as he'd finished the first. He says he crept into his office one evening, saw the sword hanging over his chair, and cracked.

"Cracking wildly," Jim explains, "I thumbed my nose at the sword, slammed the door and ran out of the building as fast as my bandy legs would carry me. I ran all the way home, jumped into bed and pulled the covers over my head."

That, he says, is how he left the newspaper business. For a couple of pages more he tells you what a swell life it was—but he'd had it.

First Tri-Service Graduation Colorful Royal Roads Ceremony

As a warm spring sun shone down on colorfully-dressed mothers, family friends and other guests, 63 cadets, representing cities and communities from across Canada, graduated today from the Canadian Services College at Royal Roads.

It was the first graduation class from Royal Roads since it became a tri-service college in 1948 and included cadets from the navy, army and air force.

Vice-Admiral H. T. E. Grant, chief of naval staff, attended the ceremony, taking the parade salute and delivering the graduation address. He was introduced by Group Capt. G. B. Mill ward, commandant of the college. With Admiral Grant on the inspection party were Maj. Gen. M. H. S. Penhale, general officer commanding, Western Command; Air Vice-Marshal C. R. Dunlap, R.C.A.F., air officer commanding, North West Air Command; and Rear Admiral H. G. DeWolf, flag officer Pacific Coast.

The list of first-class certificates and honor prizes follows:

Captain's Cup: Awarded to the outstanding senior term cadet in athletic ability and sportsmanship, won by H. C. Pitts (Army), of Castlegar, B.C.

The Director of Studies Cup: Awarded to the outstanding junior term cadet for athletic ability and sportsmanship, won by Ronald F. Holland (R.C.A.F.) of Kelowna.

The Governor-General's Bronze Medal: Awarded to the cadet who proves himself to be the most proficient academically in the junior term. With an average of 82.9 per cent, it was won by Ted S. Kolber (Army) of Calgary.

First class certificates:

CERTIFICATE WINNERS: For attaining a pass mark in all academic subjects, together with an overall average of 75 per cent or better, senior term cadets are awarded a first class certificate. The following cadets qualified:

It was pointed out that this greater catch will be taken with one-third less fishing effort than was required to take the smaller catch of that earlier year.

30 BOATS PREPARING: Nearly 30 boats are currently preparing to head seaward from the Victoria-Saanich Peninsula area.

The fisheries commission anticipates that the catch of halibut on the Pacific coast this year will amount to $6,000,000 pounds, or about 30 per cent more than the catch that the unrestricted fishery was able to take in the year before the regulation began.

It was pointed out that this greater catch will be taken with one-third less fishing effort than was required to take the smaller catch of that earlier year.

Fishermen Prepare For Halibut Season Monday

Fishermen from Washington to Alaska, including a number from Victoria, will spend a busy month or two starting Monday.

On that date the halibut season, as laid down by the International Fisheries Commission, opens. It closes in the five regulatory areas from Oregon to the Bering Sea when set limits are attained.

Area 2, stretching from Willapa Harbor, Wash., and Cape Spencer, Alaska, has a quota of 25,500,000 pounds. Last year

Board Seeks Dispute End In Saanich

Two members of the B.C. Labor Relations Board will attempt to bring about settlement between Saanich Council and Saanich Municipal Employees' Association over terms of a 1950 work agreement, it was learned today.

Lt.-Col. Macgregor Macintosh and George Wilkinson, Victoria members of the board, are scheduled to go before Saanich Council at a regular council meeting Monday night to discuss implementation of a unanimous conciliation board report concerning municipal employees.

The report, handed down earlier in the month, recommended council provide its employees with a joint-contributory health plan and wage increases for 18 persons in position, carrying heaviest responsibility.

Council agreed to the proposed health plan but refused to pay the recommended wage increases.

The employees have threatened to strike if wage provisions of the conciliation board's report are not met.

Salvation Army Plans City Music Festival

NO PLEA

Two counts of creating a disturbance and using vulgar language in a city hotel and a restaurant were read against Joseph Henry Fry in city police court today. Both cases were remanded to Tuesday without plea.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Pleading not guilty to a charge of careless driving on April 22, Edward C. Robertson, 1211 Lockley Road, was remanded in city police court today until Wednesday.

CARELESS DRIVING

Charles Hamilton, 1963 Colville Road, was fined $35 or default of five days in city police court today for a careless driving charge following a collision with an automobile driven by Rudolph J. Waldeen, 366 St. Charles Street on April 11.

Juveniles Smashing Lights With B-B Guns, Sling Shots

THIEVES SCATTER MILKSHAKES OVER COUNTERS AND FLOOR

Thieves helped themselves to milkshakes and threw ice cream and milkshakes over counters and the floor of Mac's Java Cup, 617 Gorge Road during the night, city police reported today.

First to notice the mess was Mrs. Eda Miller, a waitress. She told R. L. Stevenson, proprietor, who informed police. In addition, $250 worth of cigarettes, $40 worth of cigars and $5 worth of chocolate bars were taken.

Entry was made by jimmying a window and door lock on the east side, and thieves apparently left through the west exit, police said.

Vandals Active In Victoria West

City lighting department, in co-operation with the police, will crack down on a group of juveniles in Victoria West who are responsible for the city's first major outbreak of vandalism in a year.

Ken Reid, city lighting superintendent, said today youths "definitely armed with B-B guns and probably sling shots" had broken 12 to 15 globes, costing some $200 in the past two months. The new type lighting was installed in Victoria West a year ago.

"At Langford and Alston, one street lighting fixture had been broken four times in three weeks," Mr. Reid said. "Each light costs $14.50 which makes a total of nearly $60 at that one corner."

"That does not take into account expense to the department from labor costs and inconvenience of changing the globes."

A bad outbreak of similar vandalism occurred a year ago, with Government Street from Herald to the Fountain intersection, the trouble spot.

FINED FOR SPEEDING

Charged with speeding on April 15, Wilfred Hitchinson was found guilty by Magistrate Henry Hall in city police court today and fined $15 or in default three days in jail.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Annual War On Moths Starts As Winter Togs Are Stored

By PENNY SAVER

Mabel, old bean, how are ya? Haven't seen you in ages, where have you been hiding yourself? In a where? A closet? Oh, come now, surely you've paid your income tax. Oh, it's not income tax—you're storing winter clothes, and you smell like a what? Heavens to gardenias, Mabel, Bob Hope's been cut off the air for saying less! What makes you think you won't need your winter clothes any longer? Oh, a bird told you. Well, I always say a bird in the front yard is worth two on the wing, flying south to California.

Anyhow, glad to hear you're hard at a very worthy chore. So many people neglect this clothes-saving effort and suffer great regret when they open cupboard door only to see a moth come out with a piece of their new suit in his mouth.

As warmer weather approaches it is a good idea to take stock of all woollens, have them cleaned either by washing or having them sent to the cleaners, then prepare to store them away in air-tight wrappings.

I don't know what you're using Mabel, old dear, but moth ball rings for closet protection are mighty handy and easy to use. A tubular ring, secured to a clothes hanger hook, will hold 13 balls and, sells for 25 cents. They're plastic and in different colors. By the way, a one-pound box of moth balls sells for 19 cents and a half-pound bag for a dime.

From Holland comes something they call mottips. There are approximately five or six little round "blocks" of sweet smelling moth-killers in each package. All you do is tie a "block" on the clothes hanger. Speaking of block type moth-scapers, they range from five pennies up and are available in any size you need. Fragrances are numerous too, apple blossom, gardenia, cedar pine and bouquet.

If you prefer crystals, they're on the counters in packages at all prices, from two pounds for 49 cents, up. A simple method to follow for use of crystals is to first brush garments or materials thoroughly before sprinkling the crystals freely. You can also use them in tightly closed chests, closets, drawers, storage rooms or for vaporizing vacuum cleaners.

To finish the job you'll want to use a garment hanger whether it be paper or plastic. A paper garment bag sells anywhere from 20 cents up, and the plastic $1.79, complete with zippered side opening. Just so that you won't have to rummage through all your paper containers to find a certain garment they've made you a little front window so that you can peek in any time. Well Mabel, my pet, mustn't keep you from your work. I'll phone you again soon.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDERD

When the summer season is approaching the mother may have to determine whether she will have the capacity to nurse the baby until the cooler weather, or whether she may be compelled to wean during the hot season.

If there is any danger of this it is better to get the baby established on the new food, before the advent of hot weather. April and May are good months for weaning when weaning is clearly imminent. It shouldn't be done capriciously.

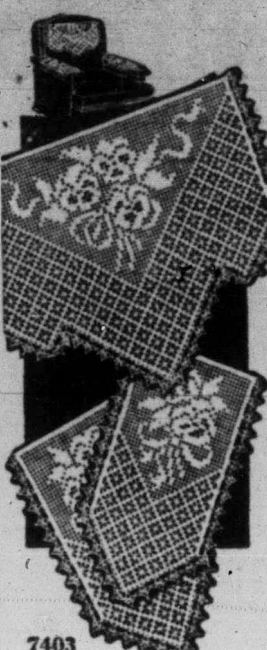

Weaning need not be a difficult task if the baby is old enough to drink from cup. If cup is a new utensil to him then it is preferable to wean to a bottle and do the cup weaning later. One thing at a time.

Choose one of the daytime feedings, when the baby is wide-awake and in an agreeable mood, to present the milk in this new utensil—either bottle or cup. The mid-afternoon feeding is a good one, as it is immaterial whether the baby takes much or little at this particular time.

Always present the new utensil with a smile. Talk to the baby cheerfully. Make much of his progress. By the end of a month the baby should be able to drink an appreciable amount by cup or bottle and the nursings may end.

Our leaflet No. 24 "Weaning the Breast-Fed Baby," is more explicit in its advice. It may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

DOROTHY DIX

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a widow 60 years old and live with my daughter, though I have other children. My daughter and her husband want to break up housekeeping and board, but I don't think that they have a right to do this, because, if they did, I would have to go and live with my other children, and that would not be home to me. MOTHER.

Answer: Inasmuch as you have other children with whom you can live, I do not see that it is incumbent on your daughter to maintain a house just for you because you want to live in a certain place. This is nothing but rank selfishness on your part. Your daughter has to think of her husband's welfare and his happiness even before yours.

Miss Irene Scott, council vice-president, expressed thanks of the gathering at close of her address.

DRIVING SATISFACTION
DEPENDS ON HOW YOUR CAR OPERATES

Anyone can drive any car, but not everyone ENJOYS driving any car. A car that has been through our Spring Check-up is a car that anyone can ENJOY driving.

We drain out the winter's salt, grease, and clean the fuel system so it won't clog.

When the job is all done everyone agrees. Driving satisfaction climbs several degrees.

DRIVE IN NOW. LET US GIVE YOU AN ESTIMATE.

Appeal Wn By B.C. Electric

B.C. Electric Railway Co. has won its appeal against a judgment of Judge R. A. Sargent awarding a sum of $185 damages to Robert Irwin Kenn of Vancouver.

Kenn claimed damages, including sums for medical expenses and lost earning-power. He alleged a bus driver had been negligent in driving 90 feet past a bus-stop at Jervis and Robson Streets, opening the doors and "inviting" passengers to board. The accident occurred when the roads were slippery this winter.

Naden Sailors Injured As Car Overtakes

Satisfactory progress was reported by King's Daughters' Hospital officials today regarding the condition of Andrew Clement, H.M.C.S. Naden, who suffered serious head injuries Thursday evening when a car in which he was riding overturned near Mill Bay.

Clement was a passenger in a car owned and driven by James Steel, also of H.M.C.S. Naden. The car got out of control at the top of Scollard's Hill and overturned twice, landing upside down in the middle of the highway.

Chamber Loses Eight Members

There was a drop in general membership of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce during 1949. It was reported this afternoon at the chamber's annual meeting.

Judge Dismisses Logger's Suit

Claim of Ira Trowsdale, Oyster Bay logger, for $250 down payment on a car bought from Crab's Auto Sales, 2706 Government Street, was dismissed by Judge H. H. Shandley in County Court Thursday.

Trowsdale alleged that the dealer represented a 1935 model car as a 1938 model. He sought return of his $250 down payment.

In the $308 counter-claim, the garage alleged repairs had been necessary after the car was returned to the garage, and that used car prices had gone down in the interval, resulting in a loss. J. B. Clearhue represented the auto dealers.

They are Richard Hale, chief, pensions officer of the Canadian Legion; Capt. Allan Piper, deputy pensions officer and a double amputee; and F. Robertson, assistant pensions officer.

Invitations will be sent to branches in the Victoria area to send representatives to the meeting.

At a meeting Thursday night, the Legion's zone council passed a resolution urging an urban centre in Victoria for air force reserve and air cadet activities. A resolution dealing with absence of regimental units on Canadian war graves in Italy was referred to the Dominion Command for a report at the national convention in Winnipeg next month.

A further investigation will be made by the council regarding employment of veterans at the Memorial Arena and regarding rental rates of Central Mortgage & Housing projects in the Victoria district.

Les Scott and R. B. Longridge were appointed to a committee to inquire into unemployment matters regarding ex-servicemen.

OTTAWA READY WITH AID FOR FLOODED AREAS

Government Willing To Consider Pleas
Says St. Laurent

OTTAWA (BUP) — Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent said today consideration will be given to federal disaster relief measures for the flooded areas of Manitoba.

The Prime Minister told the House of Commons that anyone in a disaster area could expect the same treatment given victims of the Fraser Valley floods in the spring of 1948.

Mr. St. Laurent said he had received a telegram from Mayor Harry Shewman of Morris, Man., asking for a Royal Commission enquiry into the cause of the Red River floods, and special financial assistance.

Sherwin also asked for a few days of grace for residents of the flooded areas in filling their income tax returns, due May 1.

The Prime Minister said there would not be a Royal Commission inquiry into the flood causes, but the government would investigate the situation through its existing offices.

Acting Revenue Minister Robert Winters said he would look into special exemptions for filing tax returns.

External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson said the floods were caused by waters crossing the international border from the United States. While U.S. authorities had carried out public works projects to correct the flood situation, the effect of them on Canada had been negligible, he said.

A further report of engineers working for the international joint commission on the flood problem was expected shortly, he said.

During the Fraser Valley floods of 1948, the government set up a working group of federal and provincial authorities to administer flood relief. Special tax exemptions were made available to the flood victims and a federal relief fund was established.

Churchill Urges
New Election Now

LONDON (UP) — Winston Churchill today demanded an early general election.

The Conservative Party leader told the Primrose League lodge the voters should be given a chance to end the political deadlock.

He ignored the advice of some other Conservatives, who believe an election now would only result in another deadlock.

Tornado Strikes

HOBART, Okla. (AP) — A tornado struck late today between Granite and Lone Wolf, in southwestern Oklahoma. There were no immediate details as to damage or deaths.

It was also reported northwest of Hobart in a northeasterly direction.

LATE NEWS

Wants Govt. Finances Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, moved in the Commons today a motion for appointment of a Royal Commission to investigate the whole field of government financing.

Red Dean Not Welcome

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said today he couldn't imagine that Britain's Dean of Canterbury "would be welcomed by any great number of Canadians other than Communists and their friends." If he visits this country, Mr. Pearson was asked by Frank Lennard (P.C.-Wentworth) whether the "Red Dean" is going to visit Canada in May, as reported in the press, and if he would get a Canadian visa.

Attack Made On Governor

SINGAPORE (Reuter) — A bomb attempt was made today on the life of Sir Franklin Gimson, Governor of Singapore, climaxing a day of tense reports that guerrillas were opening a new "little offensive" in Malaya. Sir Franklin, 59, Governor and Commander-in-Chief here since 1946, was leaving the "Happy World" boxing stadium when a grenade, hurled by someone in the crowd, hit him on the leg.

Aussie Labor Backs Red Ban

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The Australian Government's bill to outlaw the Communist Party drew support today from a major group in the opposition Labor Party. The Parliamentary Labor Party of New South Wales—Australia's biggest state—announced it would support in principle the Communist Party dissolution bill.

Bookie Silent
Before Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pudgy-faced Frank Erickson, reputedly one of the biggest bookmakers in the United States, clammed up today and refused to answer Senators' questions about his gambling business.

Erickson acknowledged to a Senate commerce sub-committee hearing on anti-gambling legislation that he accepted wagers from anybody who wanted to bet.

But then the New Yorker, who was labeled a "un-horn punk" by the late Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York, claimed questions about his business infringed upon his constitutional rights. So, he refused to answer.

Erickson's lawyer, O. R. McGuire, said his bald, round-faced client didn't want to answer to questions that would "involve him with local authorities."

Three-Year Terms On Charges Of Nudism

NELSON, B.C. (BUP) — Doukhobors stripped in court at Nelson, B.C. today as 31 were sentenced to three years in prison each on nudism charges.

Led by 74-year-old Annie Kofinoff, three women and five men defendants began taking off their clothes in the crowded courtroom when they were sentenced. The three women took everything off, standing completely nude in the courtroom, while the men got almost everything off before being restrained by police.

The 31 were sentenced for nude parading at Krestova. During the trial today, when asked if they had any evidence to give, three women and one man said: "This is our evidence," and promptly began taking off their clothes. They were stopped by officers.

One defendant, Bill Poznikoff, said, "We are not guilty of being nude, but we fired the building before we stripped."

Another, Alec Efanoff said: "Christ did not accept the laws of the country and neither do we."

Magistrate William Irvine replied, "He was not a nudist."

Also in court today at Nelson, Nick Volkin and William Lawrenoff were committed for trial for trying to burn down the Slocan community hall in early April.

While the trial was progressing in Nelson, at Krestova about 200 Sons of Freedom marched up and down the muddy street, chanting Russian hymns and threatening more burnings. Police feared they would step up their campaign of arson and stripping to avenge the stiff prison sentences.

Provincial police rushed to Perry Sliding about noon, after a Radical Doukhobor phoned them to say he was going to set fire to his home. Thursday John Wavoolin called police and told them he would put the torch to his house, and he did it before they arrived.

Extra police guarded the Crescent Valley bridge over the Slocan River today, eyeing the marching Doukhobors in Krestova. They made no move to march toward the bridge during the morning, but police were keeping close watch in case they attempted another mass nude march to Nelson to protest the heavy prison sentences. Last Monday a mass nude march was turned back at the bridge.

Two houses went up in flames Thursday, bringing the total number destroyed in the last 10 days to 18. One hundred and forty-one Doukhobors have been arrested, and only 41 have so far been sentenced. Ten women appeared in court at Trail B.C. Thursday and each were given two and a half years in prison.

Dr. Peter Larkin of Vancouver told the delegates that a larger supply of fresh shrimps will aid fishing.

Dr. Larkin, a fishery biologist, explained why there is a lag in trout growth in the one to three-year age classes.

"Trout live on minute organisms until they are about a year old," he said. "Then they need intermediate size foods, such as shrimps, to grow them big enough to feed on other fish and become the monster trout for which the Kootenay Lake area is already famous."

At present there is a shortage of this intermediate food," he said. Two species of fresh water shrimp have been introduced from Alberta for the Kootenay Lake. They thrive at great depths.
